REPORTING EDWARD HURT IN AUTO

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Much excitement was caused in the House of Commons by a report that King Edward met with a serious accident in his automobile to-day in Newmarket. The report, not yet confirmed, says that the chauffeur was killed and King Edward thrown out and seriously hurt.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR CHINESE IN FRENCH RIOT.

PEKIN, Oct. 30.—An edict was issued to-day which calls for the decapitation of two Chinese officers and the severe punishment of seven others concerned in the crossing of the Tonkin border and killing a number of French soldiers in July of the present year.

HEAVY LOSS BY STORM IN NICARAGUA.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 30.—The hurricane which swept over the east coast of Nicaragua a few days ago was accompanied on the coast by a huge tidal wave. The loss will reach half a million of dollars.

UNION OFFICERS APPEAL COURT CASE.

Michael C. Roach and Joseph Boyle, prominent officers of the Journeymen Horseshoers' Union, were to-day fined $50 each before Judge Bennett of the Municipal Court, the specific charge being unlawful delivery of liquors to others than licensed expressmen to transport to no-license towns. The cases were appealed. The present trouble grows out of a picnic held by the union on the Sunday after Labor Day, at which time refreshments were shipped to Billerica, where the union picnic was held.

BIG SHIPS HELD BY GALE LEAVE PORT.

The Red Star liner Menominee, Captain Moller; the Warren liner Sagamore, for Liverpool; the Leyland liners Anglian, for London, and Bohemian, for Liverpool, and the City of Gloucester, for Gloucester, left Boston harbor this afternoon. They had been held up by the storm.

DOCTOR DIES OF RABIES IN SHANGHAI.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 30.—I. Edward Hall, one of the most eminent dentists of the Orient, is dead here of hydrophobia.

STEEL MEN GUILTY FINED $1000

President Andrews of Boston Bridge Works and Secretary Fitts of New England Structural Company Admits Charge of Collusion in City Bidding.

Without waiting for their cases to come to trial, President David H. Andrews of the Boston Bridge Works and Secretary Charles N. Fitts of the New England Structural Company came into the criminal session of the Suffolk Superior Court this afternoon and pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with collusion in obtaining contracts for steel superstructures of the Brookline street and Broadway bridges.

Judge Harris fined them $1,000 each. They pad the fines and departed, the plea, fine and payment consuming only a few minutes.

Civil suits had been instituted by the City of Boston to recover from the two companies an excess of $5,000 as profits made through the fraud. Judgment was entered yesterday for the city and the amount was paid over to the city.

The pleas to-day did not come on the regular trial list. It was not generally known that Andrews and Fitts were coming into court to-day to plead.

The contract for the steel superstructure of the Broadway bridge was awarded to the Boston Bridge Works for $112,874 in September, 1902. The New England Structural Company had bid $113,900 on the job.

On the contract for the Brookline-street bridge the Boston Bridge Works bid $16,380 and the New England Structural Company bid $16,154. The contract was awarded to the New England Structural Company.

The indictment against Fitts and Andrews charged that the signature of City Engineer Jackson to the contracts was obtained on the pretense that they were independent of each other, whereas, in fact, the bids were collusive, the Boston Bridge Works having been paid by the New England Structural Company a certain sum of money in consideration of its making bridge the higher bid.

THREE WRECKS AS BIG GALE SWEEPS COAST

STEAMERS IN PERIL AROUND CAPE COD IN WORST STORM OF THE SEASON.

New England shipping was paralyzed like got in several hours late with shutters smashed, her port cabin wrecked and flood of and one sailor with a broken leg. He was Rudolph Halberson and is in the City Hospital. Chief Officer Garfield said it was the worst storm he had ever seen in Massachusetts Bay and that the wind was certainly not less than seventy miles an hour.

Captain Tarichet of the Philadelphia line steamer Tuscan, which got in about the same time, said that the wind was not less than 100 miles an hour. "It was a terrible night" he said. "But we came through without any damage."

The harbor police were out all day hunting for yachts and power launches which got away. The fine power boat The Sundidge, owned by L. E. Smith of Wilthrop, was one of the missing.

Houseboat Sinks in Bay.

A houseboat, owned by Mr. Baker, moored off the South Boston Yacht Club's anchorage sank in fifteen feet of water. The City Point life savers took Mr. Baker and one sailor who were on the boat ashore.

The Governor Dingley of the Eastern Steamship line did not attempt to make her nightly trip from Portland to Boston, nor has her sister boat, the Governor Cobb, from Boston to Portland.

The official records of the Weather Bureau showed that the storm was raging only north of Washington, D. C., on the Atlantic coast and over New England. The rest of the country was enjoying fine weather. The rainfall for the twenty hours ending at 8 a. m. was as follows:

Boston, 1.62 inches; Portland, 1.02; Block Island, 1.50; Atlantic City, 2.50; Washington, 1. Boston, even with the heavy rain of last night, had fallen short of the normal downfall for October up to a corresponding date at 8 a. m., having and but 2.48 for the thirty days, as against 3.80 inches, the normal average for the same period.

The official velocity of the wind was given as thirty-four miles at Boston, forty-eight at Block Island and thirty-six at Eastport.

The big whaleback Bellevue, which left for Portland yesterday, ran back into quarantine last night and dropped anchor. The schooners Laura L. Sprague, from Lynn to Norfolk; Sarah W. Lawrence, from Port Johnson to Baltimore, and Henry D. May, from Philadelphia to Calais, Me., all ran into Nantucket Roads for shelter.

There is a fleet of vessels anchored in Nasa River including the steamer Chisholm and the schooners Barnard, Gertrude, Tamaqua and Lunate, towing loaded barges.

The Clyde liner Chippewa and the Ocean steamer Dresdenfels were also standing there for the storm to abate.

The steam lighter Leviathan, towing the schooner Sontara with barges in tow ran into Vineyard Sound.

CATCH GLIMPSE OF SINKING SCHOONER AS STORM VEIL LIFTS

NORTH EASTHAM, Oct. 30.—During the height of the storm about two hours after dawn to-day the life-savers of the Nauset station caught a glimpse of a two-masted schooner with her fore and mainmasts blown away, going slowly south under a foresail, with a fishing schooner alongside, apparently rendering assistance. The glimpse of the schooner, which was evidently in distress, was soon shut out by the thickening of the weather. The life-savers reported her about two miles offshore, and notified the Orleans station to the south to be on the watch for her.

TWO NEW YORK GIRLS SEIZED BY KIDNAPPER

Stolen From Their Home by Discharged Employe, Father Asserts.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Alexandra and Evangeline de Lamonaka, aged sixteen and twelve respectively, were boldly kidnaped from their home at No. 93 Roosevelt street to-day, and a score of detectives working on the case have been unable to discover any clews in their whereabouts.

If the story of their father, Nicholas A. de Lamonaka, grocer, is true, it is the most daring case of kidnaping that has been reported to the police in many years. Between the hours of 1 and 5 this morning, according to his story, a man formerly employed by him, and who was recently discharged, entered his home, went to the room where the girls were sleeping, fooled them to hastily dress, and fled with them from the house. No a sound was heard by Dr. Lamonaka and his wife, who were asleep in a adjoining room.

Revenge, according to the father, was the motive of the kidnapping and he says that his children may have come to some harm.

CIGAR DEAL LEADS TO TWO ARRESTS

William Brown and Daniel A. Bush, employes of the Bethlehem Steel and Ivy Company at No. 145 High street, had their case continued until November 6 by Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Court to-day. They are charged with robbing Joseph M. Blake's cigar nother. According to Blake's story, he sold them cigars for $20, and they were dissatisfied with the goods, and one he visited them again made him give them $8 in cash and a gold watch.

Robert J. McCartney, who was the New England president of the Iroquois when Eben S. Draper broke his pledge to the molders and ordered his employes to withdraw from the union, says:

Every workingman who wishes to make his protest against Eben S. Draper most effective will vote for Wil liam N. Osgood, the candidat e of the Co ndence League, for Governor.

(From To-day's Springfield Union.)

RALLY GIVEN UP.

Easthampton Democrats Unable to Procure Speakers.

EASTHAMPTON, Oct. 29—Easthampton Democrats have decided to give up the rally that was to have been held Friday evening in the Town hall. They could not get the speakers they desired and so decided not to have any demonstration. This is the second attempt to hold a rally that has been abandoned. The Democrats do not admit that there has been any lack of enthusiasm, but say they have been a little unfortunate.

TWO WOMEN IN FIGHT CAUSE FURIOUS RIOT

NORTH CAMBRIDGE NEIGHBORS JOIN IN FRACAS; POLICE CLUB COMBATANTS.

A fight between two women, whom two men tried to separate with a whole neighborhood taking sides, precipitated a riot this afternoon in Yorktown street, North Cambridge.

When peace was restored by a wagon load of policemen from Station 4, Bridget La Rose and Anna Taylor, the feminine combatants, were picked up. John Hewitt and John Garney were held for inciting a riot, after being treated by a surgeon from the Relief Hospital for wounds on the head.

According to the best authenticated version of the row, the La Rose woman quarreled with the Taylor girl. Then the riot began, the whole neighborhood taking sides. Hewitt and Garney tried to separate the women, and both turned upon the two Johns, apparently coming out victorious. All are well known in the locality, and policemen were enjoined to mogle, evening by, and a free-for-all battle resulted. Stones and bricks were hurled, clubs were wielded vigorously, windows were smashed and men and women by the dozen were wounded before the Black Maria descended on the scene. The police had to use their clubs to subdue the rioters.

WAITERS OBSERVE 45TH ANNIVERSARY

Following the celebration of their forty-fifth anniversary, the Waiters' Benevolent Association has entered upon their new year with every prospect of a brighter future than the successful twelve months just past. The celebration of the anniversary in Knights of Honor Hall, No. 720 Washington street, was a gala event. Otto L. London, president of the association, presided. One of the features of the evening was an address by James McHugh, the oldest member of the association in point of service.

SPANISH WAR VET TAKEN FOR YEGG OUTRAGE

Burnett Held as Suspect in Shooting of Lynn Policeman.

LYNN, Oct. 30.—Reuben A. Burnett, after being three weeks, was arrested to-day by Policeman William A. Ruth as a suspect. The officer thinks that Burnett is one of the men who broke into the house of Maxwell Lewis at Swampscott in August and fired upon Ruth when he tried to arrest them. The burglars escaped. The shooting happened on Nahant street, in what is known as "Lynn's diamond district," and is the abode of the wealthy.

Burnett will be arraigned in court to-morrow on the charge of an attempt to kill.

After Policeman Ruth was shot in the thigh and taken to the Lynn City Hospital, he said that when he was able to get on his feet he would make it his business to find the burglars.

This was early in the morning when the policemen had stopped men coming from Swampscott. One of them carried a big bundle. They looked suspicious and the officer commanded them to halt. Instead of terror because of yegg outrages, the strangers refused to stop at the officer's command, and one of them, without warning, drew a revolver and shot Ruth in the left thigh, both fled.

When Ruth saw Burnett about three weeks ago he suspected he was one of the men who had escaped him, and began to follow him around the West End and to Boston.

It is said he saw him spending money freely, although he could not see that the man had any income. Finally he arrested him as a suspicious character, and when he was taken to a station house the police decided to arraign him on a more serious charge. The prisoner is a Spanish war veteran.

YOUTHS SAVE WOMEN FROM DEATH IN FIRE

Found Overcome on Floor of Burning Room in Charlestown Tenement.

At a fire in the apartment house at No. 70 Tremont street, Charlestown, to-day, Joseph McCann, Joseph Dunn and Fred Williams rescued Mrs. Mary Smith, her three-year-old son Johnny, and Mrs. John Shepard, her mother. The two women fainted at the sight of flames eating into the wall at the kitchen of their apartment on the second floor. Mrs. Smith had been a Chelsea fire refugee. Since the horror of that conflagration she has lived in mortal terror of a like experience.

Mrs. Shepard was on the roof hanging out clothes when she heard her daughter's screams of terror. Running down stairs she found Mrs. Smith on the floor and the child Johnny wailing by her side. The lid had been left off the stove and sparks from burning wood had flown upward and set fire to a mantle drapery. It seemed to Mrs. Shepard that the whole wall was on fire. She fell to the floor unconscious through fright. Smoke poured out of a window and was seen by McCann and Dunn, who are twenty-one and nineteen years old and live at Nos. 70 and 72 Decatur street, respectively, and by Williams, who is twenty and lives at No. 7 Jackson street.

They rushed up the stairs and found the two women and child. One of the young men took the child in his arms and the others carried Mrs. Smith and her mother to the street and into the home of a neighbor.

Meanwhile smoke had spread through the house and there was a panic. Mrs. Mary Buckley, a tenant, wrapped her seven-months-old child in a blanket and made for the street. Mrs. Alice Carty took her little boy Johnny and three-year-old daughter Josephine and also reached the sidewalk in safety. The firemen got out the fire in a few moments. The damage is estimated at $25.

COULTHURST OUTLINES NEW PARTY IDEALS

Explains Independence Principles to Members of Equal Suffrage Association.

REFERENDUM AND RECALL

John A. Coulthurst yesterday outlined the principles of the Independence party at a meeting of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association for Good Government, held at 6 Marlborough street. About 300 men and women were present. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead presided.

Former Mayor Josiah Quincy spoke for the Democrats, Hon. Grafton D. Cushing for the Republicans and Franklin H. Wentworth for the Socialists. Each speaker was given twenty minutes for his address, after which questions were asked by many in the audience.

What Parties Stand for.

Mr. Coulthurst said, in part:

"The National Independence party advocates first, as a remedy for the existing situation, certain principles, not claiming that these principles are panacea but that the practical obligation will bring about a pure democracy, greater national prosperity and a higher civilization.

"The proposition contained in the National Independence platform are first, direct primary nominations of all candidates for public office. This means the abolishing of political conventions, which will tend to destroy the evils of political bossism. This principle is also applied to all candidates for public office from Councilmen to Governor and United States Senator.

"Second, we favor the initiative or direct legislation, whereby the people on important matters are enabled to legislate themselves directly without the intervention of legislators. This principle has been tried successfully in Switzerland and New Zealand.

Referendum and Recall.

"We also advocate the referendum, principle by which in important matters the act of legislation is not final in making a law until it receives the approval of the voters.

"We also believe in the recall, whereby an unfaithful public servant can at the option of the electorate be returned to private life and replaced by a more efficient public servant.

"We also advocate election of judges and election of United States Senators.

"We do not claim that the election of United States Senators will immediately cure all dishonest and unfaithful public servants out of the United States Senate and of the branch, but we do claim that the chances of improper influence in the election or appointment of such public officials will be lessened."

TWO IDENTIFIED AS HIGHWAYMEN

Joseph Moran and William F. Duncan were held in $8,000 each for the grand jury by Judge Wilfong in the East Boston police court to-day on the charge of being the two men who shortly after midnight on Saturday held up Detective Sergeant Pettis at No. 276 East Cottage street in Edward Everett square. Mr. Jaskins positively identified the prisoners as the highwaymen who sprang upon him in the darkness and held a pistol to his head so that he would make no outcry while being robbed. Moran was chased by a policeman in an automobile and finally caught. Duncan was arrested in a South End house the next day. The prisoners say they live in New York.

The voting this week has been heavy. To-day is sure to be the BIGGEST DAY since the contest opened. Therefore it would be well for candidates and their friends to get their ballots and special ballots in EARLY and avoid the rush at the last moment.

Are YOU a Sunday School teacher?

If so, have you ENTERED the contest? If you have not already done so, put the matter out of your mind and have your name appear with the others in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Remember that thirty-six Sunday School teachers—one from each of the nine metropolitan districts—will go on the tour. Everybody wants FREE trip. One teacher from each district, but only FOUR WOMEN! One of the four from YOUR district? Of course you would. Then SEND IN YOUR ENTRY!

Bright School Children of Boston After $500 in Prizes

Entries are coming in fast in Boston American's great handwriting contest.

Every Boston school boy and school girl under sixteen is preparing to enter the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN handwriting contest, in which 250 cash prizes, aggregating $500, are to be given to the children who show best penmanship in writing the sentence:

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN IS READ IN OUR HOME.

Parents and teachers are going to be as interested in the contest as children. Entries are now being received. The contest will end December 12.

Besides gladdening the hearts of 250 lucky boys and girls who will win cash prizes, the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN handwriting contest is going to accomplish other good results, for example:

It will encourage the 150,000 school children of Boston in their writing exercises.

It will help the teachers, who have the great responsibility of training good citizens by a new stimulus for their pupils.

It will create a keener interest in penmanship in the progress of the young people in the art of penmanship.

Any boy or girl, NOT MORE THAN SIXTEEN YEARS OF AGE, is entitled to enter this competition and try for the prizes awarded by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. All that is necessary to enter is to comply with the conditions printed in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN contains full particulars. Parents should TALK TO THEIR CHILDREN ABOUT IT. Teachers should TALK TO THEIR CHILDREN. THEY SHOULD URGE THEM TO ENTER. Five minutes' talk by Jack will get the hand in the SUNDAY AMERICAN and send it to the HANDWRITING EDITOR.

This is how the prizes will be awarded:

$500 in Prizes.

TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF EIGHT YEARS OR UNDER—$100 in prizes, as follows: First prize, $20; second prize, $10; third prize, $5; six prizes of $3 each; six prizes of $2 each, and thirty-five prizes of $1 each.

SETTLEMENT ENDS BITTER DIVORCE FIGHT

Attorneys in Jewell Case Reach Compromise of Question of Alimony and Child.

Because of a private agreement on the question of alimony and custody of a sixteen-year-old child by counsel for both sides, the bitter contest promised in the Jewell divorce case did not materialize when the case came up before Judge Dana in the Superior Court to-day. All opposition was withdrawn by Albert L. Jewell, the prominent real estate dealer and note broker in the suit of his wife, Addie, at whom he had entered a cross libel against her. Both libels charged desertion on July 12, 1904, a short time before Mr. Jewell went into bankruptcy with liabilities of $250,000.

When Mrs. Jewell's libel was taken up the husband was not in court. The whole proceedings lasted less than fifteen minutes. After the testimony of four witnesses the attorneys for both sides held a private conference with Judge Dana.

The contest in the case was over the couple's sixteen-year-old daughter Gladys, now attending St. Mary's Episcopal boarding school in New Jersey. She was not in court.

Mrs. Jewell was the first witness in today's proceedings. She was dressed entirely in black and wore a heavy veil. She was very nervous and at one time trembled convulsively and sobbed. The court officer brought a chair in order that she might be seated. It was thought that she would faint.

She testified that she was married in Boston in September, 1886, and that her husband left her while they were living at the Hotel Montfield, Boston.

"After he deserted me I asked him to provide a home for me, but he refused to do so," said Mrs. Jewell, breaking into tears. "My husband deserted me in 1904 and one after her father left me. I sent Gladys to the Quincy Mansion School at Quincy and her father still owes more than $1,000 for her tuition. I lived at Aunt Gladys' home while Gladys was going to the Quincy boarding school, where she remained until last February, when she went to live with her father's people. She is now in a boarding school in New Jersey.

"My husband did not provide for my support after he left me in 1904. I was forced to seek employment and I was also forced to sell my personal belongings, from which I secured about $1,400, which I used to pay my expenses. My husband has not visited me since he left me."

Edward Allen, a colored janitor employed by the family, Mrs. Louise H. Bracton of Brookline and William Harper of Allston corroborated Mrs. Jewell's testimony.

MORSE ACCUSES ICE HEAD OF FALSIFYING

CONTRADICTS OLER'S SWORN TESTIMONY REGARDING PURCHASE OF STOCK.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Charles W. Morse to-day, under oath, accused Wesley M. Oler, president of the Ice Trust, of false testimony in that Oler, at previous sessions of the trial of Morse and Alfred H. Curtis for violations of the National Banking laws, declared Morse had persuaded him to buy ice stock.

Morse was on the witness stand in his own defense.

"Did you urge Oler to buy 1,000 shares of ice stock?" Morse was asked. "I did not," replied Morse.

Morse also declared that in 1906 he had loaned Oler $100,000 on ice stock and that Oler was very grateful.

Wife in Court.

Mrs. Morse was on hand shortly after the hearing opened. Mrs. Curtis and her companion, Mrs. Steele, devoted their time to going over the typewritten testimony given by Curtis, while on the stand. Wearing a cravat of royal purple, the former "Ice King" stepped to the witness chair in lively fashion and began his narrative in answer to questions by Lawyer McKeag.

"I will have to refresh my memory by referring to memoranda if you want me to answer that," he replied to a query about the Leslie D. Whitney loan.

"I made a loan on April 9, 1906, for $153,000 on 2,000 shares of ice, $84,000 the next day on 1,500 shares; $126,500 on May 1 on 4,000 shares, and $186,000 on Oct. 1 on 2,000 shares," the witness said. "The 500 shares should not have been in the purchase and sales account; it belonged to me," said Morse, in regard to an entry under investigation.

"Did you make a loan to Mr. Oler?"

"Begged to Buy Stock."

"Yes. In 1906 he borrowed $100,000 on ice stock. I gave him the credits and he was very grateful. He declared that I would have the graves of his wife and family for any work in his behalf."

"Did you urge Oler to buy 1,000 shares of ice?" "I did not. He came to me every day, begging to be allowed to buy some of the stock. When he failed I had put him on his feet and made him president of the ice company. He was pleased with the money I had made for him and wanted to buy the block."

"Did Oler ask you to sell his ice at 90?"

"No. He said he wanted 140 for it," Morse said, with emphasis.

Morse explained how F. Augustus Heinze borrowed $400,000 from the bank in June, 1907, in the following manner.

$400,000 for Heinze.

"Heinze told me he wanted $400,000. I asked Curtis about it and he said the bank was not in a position to advance the money. We exchanged notes without handling any cash. Notes of Primrose and Bacon held by the Mercantile Bank were withdrawn and notes from Heinze, his secretary, Baglin, on William Wilder, substituted."

$2,453,000 IN CLAIMS BY 150 GAY CREDITORS

A list of some 150 creditors of E. H. Gay & Co., now in the hands of a receiver, involves about liabilities of $2,453,085. DAUGHTER AND WIDOW OF BARD MEET AT BIER

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Oct. 30.—Widow and daughter here swept together at the bier of John Parker Hutchinson, "the Bard of High Rock." They did not meet until after the death of the aged poet.

The daughter is Mrs. Viola Campbell of Lynn, the only child of the Bard. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Agnes Everett Hutchinson, the widow, are now reconciled and friendly. Mrs. Campbell, it was said, did not approve of her father's romantic marriage to Mrs. Everett in Portsmouth in 1903. She was her father's second secretary and Mr. Hutchinson was his bride's third husband.

Fred H. Nichols, conservator of the bard's property, says that he will make on Monday a statement regarding the disposition of the Hutchinson estate, which is estimated to be $100,000. It is understood that the Bard disposed of his property by will and that there will be no contest, children and widow being provided for in a manner mutually acceptable.

Funeral services for the Bard will be held in his late home at 2 o'clock this afternoon and will be conducted by the Rev. E. A. Cooper. The services will be simple and the public will be admitted.

CENSOR NEWS OF MRS. ASTOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Dr. A. Smith, a noted heart specialist, Dr. Austin Flint, Jr., and Dr. J. C. Billings held a consultation at the home of Mrs. William Astor this morning. Then they prepared a statement and left it with Mrs. Astor's secretary. The secretary, however, saw fit to exercise a censorship over the statement and showed only the last part of it which stated that the patient was resting easily.

FOR GIRLS, TOO.

Girls under sixteen are eligible in the BOSTON AMERICAN handwriting contest as well as boys. There are 250 prizes. They aggregate $500. See details in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

PLOT AGAINST ABDUL HAMID

PARIS, Oct. 30.—A special dispatch from Smyrna says that the Young Turks, believing that the Sultan has a secret understanding with Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, have decided to dethrone him and replace him by his third son.

Saloniki troops will be sent to overawe the Albanian Guard and fanatical reactionaries.

MISTAKEN FOR BIRD, IS SHOT IN FOOT

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 30.—Ralph Bean, son of Joel Bean of this city, has a serious foot today as a result of having been mistaken for a partridge by his cousin, Hedley Bean, while hunting yesterday. It took the family physician two hours to dig shot out of the injured foot. It is impossible to tell whether complications will set in or not.—From Sunday's Springfield Union.

CLOTHING ON CREDIT

Our trade increases yearly in both quantity and quality. It is a well-known fact that the best people who buy on credit trade with us. Our house is the most liberal, the best place to trade, and the easiest place to get credit. Come to us; we can satisfy your every want. Remember, there are no disagreeable features connected with opening an account at this store, and that this is so we have but to point to our great success. You know success is not won by promises, but by honest and fair treatment, low prices and a large assortment, and finally by good-wearing clothing. Our clothing is Union made; you know what that means—no shoddy stuff, but the best made and made right. It must be when you consider that we buy for 44 stores.

We invite you to open an account with us. The payments each week are so small you will never miss them. Goods exchanged or money refunded on all unsatisfactory purchases. It will take but a moment to convince you that this is straight and honest talk, and we will prove it if you will but give us a call.

Men

Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats in the new colors and shades are now being shown in great profusion, being made in silks, grey and brown—all the new fads of the season—either ordinary or extreme. Come look over our new and make comparisons. We feel sure you will buy. We have the goods. We will sell you right.

JAW-WORKING ORDER MAKES COPS DUMMIES

Dasn't Sass Teamsters, as Their Jaws Would Work Frequently, Against Ukase.

SAVE JOBS BY SILENCE

Every Boston cop is struggling to-day with Commissioner O'Meara's new rule against "frequent movements of the jaw."

What the commissioner aims at is to prevent the policemen wearing toothpicks or chewing tobacco, gum or anything else while on duty.

Hence the new order as follows:

"Toothpicks are not to be held in the mouths of officers while on duty; frequent movements of the jaw are not to be made, as these are violations of the department rules and it is conduct unbecoming an officer. Such acts are childish and unsoldierly and breaches of this order must be reported."

The police do not kick against the anti-toothpick rule. They realize that no cop can manifest manly grace and dignified mentness when a toothpick sticks out from his mouth at an angle of forty-five degrees. Besides, it is dangerous. In a crowd someone is apt to jam the tooth-pick accidentally down the cop's oesophagus and cause strangulation of the breath.

Jaw Work Shut Off.

The rule against "frequent movements of the jaw," however, has the cops buffaloed.

It is presumed that the commissioner was campaigning against chewing tobacco, cured fruit and other alcoholic and gummy delights. But look how he has worded it. It shuts off all ordinary jaw work. For a cop won't move his jaw except every now and then, how is he to talk?

Take the cops at the busy crossings in the down-town shopping district in the afternoon rush hours. A pretty girl says: "Can you tell me please, how to get to Blank's store. There's a lovely sale on there and I——"

Usually this raises an engaging smile from the gallant cop and painstaking directions of how to get to Blank's. Now the cop must be wary of opening his jaw.

If Blank's is only one block away he might take a chance and say quickly, "Next block."

That takes about two movements of the jaw.

But, supposing Blank's is up three streets and across two streets and two blocks to the right. The cop might lose his job moving his jaw enough to tell you.

Snubs Girl, Saves His Job.

So the best the pretty girl gets is an insufficient gesture of the hand in the general direction of Blank's. The girl passes on with a perplexed frown, but the cop has preserved his job. He hasn't moved his jaw "frequently."

Imagine a cop in an argument with an irate teamster and enjoined against moving his jaw. It's a happy time for the teamster, who lets his jaw swing unchecked while he tells the cop his plain opinion of all policemen in general and this one in particular.

Unless the cop holds his jaw in his hand to keep it from getting away from him under the stress of temptation, he is apt to move it too much in replying to the teamster.

All sergeants have to watch the patrolmen carefully hereafter for infractions of the "jaw" rule. Of course the cops will forget once in a while and let their jaws go free, as the saying is.

Reports against the cops may be expected somewhat after this fashion:

"Patrolman Jones broke anti-jaw rule at the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets at 3:30 this afternoon. He was run over by an automobile, and made sixty-seven motions of the jaw in four minutes, telling the chauffeur what he thought about him."

It is said that neither Commissioner O'Meara nor Superintendent Pierce will discuss the new order. The cops won't talk about it either. They can't express their opinion in an "infrequent movement."

OVERCOME WHEN FREED.

Mrs. Jennie L. Atwood of No. 608 Massachusetts avenue, on trial before Judge Fly in the Municipal Court on a perjury charge, was overcome when acquitted and discharged to-day. It was claimed by the State that she swore to possession of property assessed for $8,400, when it was assessed for only $2,200.

SAYS HUSBAND THREATENED; IS GIVEN DIVORCE

"My husband took me by the hair, pushed my head back against the wall and said: 'I'm going to kill you!' He had a razor in his other hand. Then he changed his mind, saying: 'No, I guess I'll kill you to-morrow; this is my busy day.'"

This testimony was given in the Suffolk Divorce Court to-day by Mrs. Eva E. Crawley of Roxbury, who further declared that after being married for twenty-nine years she had found marriage a failure. She was given a decree nisi from her husband James F. The case was not contested.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL 96 BOSTON, MASS.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the Chelsea Central Labor Union was held last night at No. 220 Broadway, Chelsea, and was attended by nearly 200 men and women who have been out on strike at the G. A. Walton Shoe Company.

The delegates to the C. L. U. promised moral support and advised those present to use caution in every move they made.

Among those who spoke were General Organizer Thomas O'Hara of the Boot and Shoe workers' Union, Treasurer Jack Lipp of Clearmakers No. 97, President James Birtle and Secretary Cornelius Moulhan of the Chelsea C. L. U., George P. Tuglo and Louis H. Sullivan of the Boston C. L. U. and Charles Baker of the new Lasters' Union, just formed.

Another meeting will be held Saturday at 9:30 a. m. at No. 81 Broadway.

LABOR NOTES.

The executive board of the Boston C. L. U. and the Franz R. Foster testimonial committee will meet to-night at No. 561 Washington street. Tickets for the benefit performance, to be held at the Columbia Theatre December 3, will be distributed.

HELD FOR BIG THEFT FROM HUB BANKERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Richard F. Parker, alias Norman H. Post, who it is charged, on September 10 obtained $20,000 worth of bonds from the banking firm of A. H. Turner & Co., No. 24 Milk street, Boston, and gave in payment a forged check, is under arrest here. The check presented by the man when he obtained the bonds was drawn on the Worcester Trust Company of Worcester, Mass.

Shortly after the arrest of Parker, who gave his name here as E. C. Devins, Foster H. Hooper, who was a partner of Howard Browning, a broker, with offices at No. 178 Lasalle street, was taken into custody charged with passing a worthless check on H. N. Stillson on September 16. The police say that all three men had been working together.

The men are believed by the police to be the same who defrauded the N. W. Harris Company out of $18,500 and E. E. Coy & Co out of $15,000 in a similar manner.

BAN ON CHINESE AT FLEET FETE

AMOY, Oct. 30.—The Chinese people are apathetic regarding the arrival here to-day of the second squadron of the United States Atlantic fleet. Only a few natives turned out to witness the arrival of the battleships, though they compose the strongest naval force that ever entered this port.

Only 100 Chinese guests will be admitted to the grounds on which the celebrations planned for the reception to American officers and sailors will be held, and the resentment at the severe measures taken to exclude the Chinese from participating in the celebration is the cause of the apathy shown.

The British consul has issued a circular stating that the local officials have decided to issue more than sixty passes to the exclusion to British subjects.

HEARST SHOWS HOW BRYAN HAS SURROUNDED HIMSELF WITH FOES OF LABOR

Democratic Vice-Chairman Lamb and Auditor King in Bitter War on Unions

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate of the independence party for President, and William Randolph Hearst addressed great independence league rallies in the Calhoun in Newark and at Cooper Union last night and received the most enthusiastic ovations.

Mr. Hearst was the first speaker at Newark, where 2,000 labor men heard the founder of the new party read letters and affidavits showing his anti-labor record, not only of Candidate William J. Bryan, but also of John E. Lamb, the present vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and M. D. King, the auditor.

Mr. Hearst produced documentary proof that both Mr. Lamb and Mr. King, who are right-hand bowers of Mr. Bryan, ranking next in importance to National Chairman Norman E. Mack and Treasurer Herman Ridder, have done all they can to perpetuate foes of union labor, and had assisted strike breakers and blacklisted labor sympathizers.

Reads Archbold Letters.

"I was on the Labor Committee in Congress. I heard Mr. Gompers come before that Labor Committee and state that for twenty years, through Democratic and Republican congressional strike, he had been trying to get certain labor measures enacted, and had never yet been able to do so.

"He also read letters written by John D. Archbold to Senator William J. Sewell of New Jersey, in which Archbold arranged the Senator from New Jersey to cooperate with Representative John E. Rowland, also of New Jersey, the present chairman of the Committee on Labor, to the end that a pending report on labor legislation be "wisely and conservatively shaped."

The reading of these affidavits and letters created a sensation.

Mr. Hearst's speech at Cooper Union follows:

Forced Eight-Hour Bill Through.

Mr. Gardner of New Jersey is the present chairman of the committee and I have never in my life seen a more unfair man. Mr. Sherman was when Mr. Hulsey of Illinois and Mr. Hurst of Mississippi and myself succeeded by a trick in forcing the eight hour bill through the Labor Committee.

I make no charge of corruption whatever against Mr. Gardner, but I am afraid that he has come under the influence of corrupting corporations makes him indifferent to the pounds of plain, everyday workingmen.

Mr. Hisgen has read these letters:

50 Broadway, Dec. 20, 1899.

Hon. William J. Sewell, Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Senator—We are informed that it is the purpose of the Industrial Commission, which has been in existence for a period of several months regarding labor and capital, to have a preliminary report at an early day to Congress which will contain some recommendations in regard thereto.

It seems very important that this report should be wisely and conservatively shaped. Respectfully yours,

Gardner of Atlantic City, N. J. is a member of the commission, and we think it very desirable indeed that no should have a letter from you on the subject. We have no doubt, from what we know of Gardner, but if that is from the locality he does, that he will treat the subject fairly and justly, but, as I say, it seems very desirable to be as thorough as possible.

Trusting you can find an opportunity of speaking with him on the subject, and with kind regards, I am, very truly yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

* * *

26 Broadway, Oct. 12, 1900.

To the Hon. W. J. Sewell, Camden, N. J.

My Dear Senator—I have your kind favor of yesterday, and beg to thank you very sincerely for your prompt attention to the matter. I hope it will be possible for you to come in some time with Mr. Gardner, but if that is not possible will be greatly pleased to see him at any time, as suggested very truly yours,

JNO. D. ARCHBOLD.

* * *

Mr. Gompers says that, although the old parties have been hostile or indifferent in the past, he has some hopes of the Democratic party in the present.

I do not share Mr. Gompers' child like confidence, and I base my opinion upon facts and not upon theories.

There is something in the natural disposition of men which makes them friendly or unfriendly to the workers, and I want to call your attention to begin with to the fact that when neither Mr. Bryan nor I had any thought or intention of seeking nomination the assemblies I was unionizing my paper in San Francisco suddenly and spontaneously, and he was calling the working men "public beggars" without any response whatever.

Enemy of Union Labor.

I want to call your attention to the fact that I denounced Mr. Haskell as an enemy of union labor and exhibited the documents to prove it, and he formed a Citizens' Alliance in Oklahoma, similar to the one that I had opposed in San Francisco. He had offered a resolution and signed it in his campaign platform to make them called trades unionism "contemptible financiering," then to be empowered to discriminate against union men and find important jobs, and the hierarchy as the Citizens' Alliance had done that I had opposed in San Francisco.

I want to call your attention to the fact that, although my charges were absolute and overwhelming, neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Haskell nor any supported Mr. Haskell as long as he was merely striking down the cause of union labor.

Mr. Haskell had been chairman of the committee that framed the Democratic platform which so grossly distorted unintelligible labor plank appears. When he was Governor he had Mr. Gompers asked you to send in your Labor Day address, but no notice was taken by the Democracy of the proof that Mr. Haskell was a foe to labor.

When later I showed that Mr. Haskell had been accused by Attorney-General Monnett of Oklahoma of trying to bribe him for the Standard Oil, that as Governor of Oklahoma he had interfered with his own Attorney-General to prevent an action against the Standard Oil, and that he was but a tool and agent of the Standard Oil, the Democratic leaders, in their agitation, for campaign secrets were coming out.

It was not, however, until I showed that Mr. Haskell was the receiver of railway deals and had defaulted in the payment of $42,000 judgment against him in New York, against which the sheriffs had collected only $20.15, that Mr. Haskell was asked to resign.

The Democrats were worried about what Mr. Haskell might do to labor, but they were not worried about what he might do to that $300,000 campaign fund.

Mr. Haskell has sued me in a sensational and utterly worthless complaint even to that claim will his campaign does not deny that he formed the gang of thieves to fight labor, that he was an officer in that Citizens' Alliance, that he ordered a boycott which includes unionism, "contemptible financiering," and that he broke the back and destroyed the organization of the street railway men in Oklahoma City, and, briefly as Mr. Belmont and Mr. Parker broke the back and destroyed the organization of the street railway men's union of New York City.

I make no statements that I have not the legal evidence to prove. Here is a sworn affidavit of James P. Hegarty, who was secretary and treasurer of the Labor Union of the City of Terre Haute:

State of Indiana, } ss:

County of Vigo. }

James P. Hegarty, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

In 1902 when 150 employes of the Terre Haute Traction Company were on strike to maintain their union, I was secretary of the Central Labor Union of the city of Terre Haute.

John J. Lamb, who is now vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, as the director of the street railway company, waged a most bitter fight against the striking union men. All orders given against the strikers either verbally or in writing by me were referred to him and passed through his office.

J. Peyton Clark was general manager of the traction line and I refused to arbitrate; Lamb refused absolutely to treat with the men and would not permit Clark to do so.

Hostility to Unionism.

He was instrumental in forming the the Citizens' Alliance, of which his law partner, John T. Beasley, was the president. The members of the alliance were pledged to do everything in their power to break the strike. With Beasley, Lamb's partner, at the head, the members met at the corner of Seventh street and Wabash avenue and boarded a car, in which they rode to show their hostility to unionism.

The Citizens' Alliance and the strike-breakers which Lamb brought from St. Louis flagrantly violated the law in this fight with Lamb the Central Labor Union emptied its treasury to the last dollar.

D. Grant Tubbs, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I now reside at No. 824 North Thirteenth street. I am employed as a coal miner and a member of the United Mine Workers. I also lived in West Terre Haute.

In January, 1902, I was employed by the Terre Haute Electric Company as a motorman. I had been active in getting the men of that service into the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, Division No. 47.

About January 10, 1902, I was approached by J. Peyton Clark, general manager of the company, and told that my activity in union matters. I was told that if I kept on I would be working against a movement then under way for shorter hours and higher wages. I could "fix my own wages; we don't stop at a few cents more or less. It is up to you." Messrs. Stone and Webster of Boston were then the reputed owners of the road. John E. Lamb and Gilbert Jones were the counsel for the traction company. They were lawyers and developed the same influence on South Sixth street. J. Peyton Clark, who had been the bribe against labor, was the general manager, and as a result, under the influence of Lamb & McNutt, governed the road and did the negotiating with me.

You can't buy me for one cent an hour or five cents an hour," was the reply I gave.

Next morning I was not "marked off" work and never have been since. I was blacklisted all over town to become a coal miner. I had to go where there were true union men.

Too Long a Story to Tell.

On January 18, 1902, the street railway workers of Terre Haute went out upon a strike. The first thing we knew, I myself, Chicago, the men of St. Louis and Chicago, were sent here by the company. It will be too long a story to tell all the oppression which the company put upon me during the time of the course of our fight for even hours and higher pay.

The Citizens' Alliance, of which John T. Beasley, the present law partner of John E. Lamb, was president, was formed.

The street railway workers of Terre Haute have never been able to form a union, and the road is now run by non-union men.

To give you an idea of Mr. Lamb's popularity among the labor unions of his own home, I will read you this third affidavit:

Fred H. Miller, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is president of the city of Terre Haute, and that in the year 1877 he was employed as a locomotive fireman and was at that time a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Union No. 16; that he, together with other members of that union, as well as engineers and employes in other parts of the Vandalia railroad in Terre Haute and elsewhere, were on strike; that on a day in or about the month of July, in the year 1877, he and others were arrested and placed in jail, and that was then the Union depot of this city, at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets; that he and others were present when a man known to him to be John E. Lamb, whom he knows to be the present vice-chairman of the National Democratic Committee and a member of the same Union No. 16, of which he was then a member, addressed a large crowd of people, including unionists, "Contemptible financiers," and that he broke the back and destroyed the organization of the street railway union of New York City.

I make no statements that I have not the legal evidence to prove. Here is a sworn affidavit of James P. Hegarty, who was secretary and treasurer of the Labor Union of the city of Terre Haute:

James P. Hegarty, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

In 1902 when 150 employes of the Terre Haute Traction Company were on strike to maintain their union, I was secretary of the Central Labor Union of the city of Terre Haute.

John J. Lamb, who is now vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, as the director of the street railway company, waged a most bitter fight against the striking union men. All orders given against the strikers either verbally or in writing by me were referred to him and passed through his office.

J. Peyton Clark was general manager of the traction line and I refused to arbitrate; Lamb refused absolutely to treat with the men and would not permit Clark to do so.

State of Indiana, } ss:

County of Vigo. }

James P. Hegarty, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

It seems, therefore, from the above affidavits, that this particular Lamb is moulding of a Black Sheep, so far as labor unions are concerned.

Mr. Bryan himself has never shown by any act of his any friendship to labor unions. His paper, the Commoner, does not carry the union label. Mr. Post, the arch enemy of union labor, who will not advertise in a single one of my publications because I am friendly to union labor, advertises in the Commoner. Mr. Bryan has had three of his books printed at W. B. Conkey's publishing house, and Mr. Conkey is one of union labor's most persistent enemies. Mr. Conkey was denounced by the Typographical Union as far back as December 12, 1892. He was denounced by the Building Trades Council on October 16, 1902, as a "pronounced enemy of organized labor." He was denounced by the American Federation of Labor and placed on their unfair list in 1900 when he was a strike of printers against Conkey's concern in 1901. Then Conkey entered an injunction and had the strikers arrested and had them sent to the municipal jail, which paid their fine.

Now, as a part of the instinctive cruelty of the Democratic organization in union labor, I have no letter here to show that Mr. King is the personal representative of the National Democratic committee in its importance to Congressional and State affairs, but Mr. Lamb and Mr. Ridder are the managers for the Democratic Association.

It is not generally known that Mr. King is not openly engaged in the present campaign he is going about the country, under pay from Mr. Bryan and his associates, establishing branches of the Manufacturers' Association to combat and destroy labor unions.

King's Own Handwriting.

The letters I am about to read are in Mr. King's own handwriting throughout. One of them is addressed to Mr. Parry, whom Mr. King intimately calls "My Dear D. M." The other letter is addressed to John Maxwell, secretary to Mr. Parry, and refers to the fight of the Manufacturers' Association against the Typographical Union and against the eight hour bill in Congress. The letter to Mr. Parry congratulates that individual upon his reselection as president of the Manufacturers' Association, and upon the adoption by the convention of Mr. Parry's anti-labor union policies. Here are the letters:

My Dear D. M.—I congratulate you upon your success at the Atlanta convention. You certainly achieved a great victory, and one upon reflection, but also searing success in securing the adoption by the convention of your policies. Hurrah for D. M. Yours truly, M. D. KING.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12, 1905.

John Maxwell, Esq., Indianapolis:

Dear Sir—Please send warm letters to eight more labor and anti-labor bill, arousing them on the fight we are making for the open shop and against the eight hour law. Also send us names from forcing them by arbitrary means to be members of unions by which they are now so vigorously fighting the Typographical Union all over the country. I refer to the Typographical Union as a body because I am made up of that class. I impress upon them the need I can that it be so they must look to us being the only ones who can help us and we will be able to save them. If you can rush these letters—and, answer at your earliest convenience. Yours truly,

M. D. KING.

I will make no further comment on the documents that I submit to your judgment tonight, and I believe that all reasonable men of any family have any sores. I can recommend the old proverb says, "Experience is a hard master."

Acid and Alkali In The Stomach

Digests the Food Naturally if in Right Proportion: if Not: Then Dyspepsia.

Acid and alkali make up the liquid known as gastric juice which digests your food.

If through abuse of the stomach, or weakness of blood, or through scores of other causes, this gastric juice is not made up correctly of acid and alkali, your stomach cannot digest food.

Such a stomach then acts as a pit where the food lies, ferments, decays, is thrown off at last, either into the intestines or is vomited from the system.

If thrown into the intestines, a large proportion of it is taken up and passed into the blood, for the intestines are covered on the inside surfaces with millions of little mouths which are placed there to suck up nourishment for the blood.

You may readily see that if instead of good blood, pure blood, the intestines receive a vile, poisonous, fermented bile and acid, these same little mouths suck some of it by necessity and pass it into the blood. The blood in turn throws it off and the system is immediately placed in an imperfect state.

The blood is weakened, the tissues lose strength, the skin becomes diseased and man in general suffers in a score of places.

Then again the blood furnishes gastric juice to the stomach, and when the gastric juice is not needed for digestive purposes it goes back to the blood. When food comes into the stomach the nerves along the Alimentary Canal and in the mouth signal the stomach help, and the blood immediately furnishes sufficient gastric juice to do the work well and quickly.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into the stomach, balance the gastric juice, digest the food, are taken up by the blood, purify it, and when the food comes again to the stomach a natural gastric juice of right proportion greets it and does its work perfectly. After a time these little tablets restore Nature, build up the gastric juice, and there is no longer dyspepsia.

Every druggist carries them in stock, price 50c; every druggist and 40,000 physicians will attest their word to the merit of these tablets. Buy a box now and relieve your stomach at once, or send us your name and address today and we will send you immediately a full sized sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER SAYS TAFT GETS HIS VOTE

FINDS PERSONAL FITNESS OF OHIOAN GREATER THAN THAT OF BRYAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—John D Rockefeller regrets that he has authorized the following interview:

"It seems to me at this time, when the question is put directly to any American citizen which candidate he will support by his vote for the presidency, he should be manly enough to answer it just as directly. I therefore say that I expect to cast my vote for William H. Taft.

"If for no other reason, I support Mr. Taft because, on comparing his personality with Mr. Bryan, his chief opponent, I find the balance of fitness and temperament entirely on his side. The election of Mr. Taft will, I believe, make for law and order and stability of business. He is not a man I judge to adventure with rash experiments or to impede a return to prosperity by advocating measures subversive of industrial progress.

"The question of candidates seems to me peculiarly a personal one in this campaign. The leading orators on both sides have not succeeded in drawing party lines, as titled on their platforms with any definiteness. I do, however, support the general Republican position on the tariff and the currency. I have always been a Republican.

"I feel the more impelled to answer this question because it cannot be said that the present Administration has in any way interfered with my personal affairs, which my life has been devoted. That, however, does not excuse me from publishing my opinion and doing what I consider my duty as a citizen."

HEARST LEARNS OIL TRUST MEN NOW FAVOR BRYAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—W. R. Hearst, in a statement on the statement of Mr. Rockefeller to-day, said:

"It is not for me to pass upon the truth or falsity of Mr. Rockefeller's personal statement. I know, however, that in Montana the great copper interests which the Standard Oil people control are in favor of the Democratic party. I know this because my people used to own these copper mines, and we have still many friends among the same people, who inform us of these facts.

"I am also informed by the BOSTON AMERICAN editors that the Standard Oil people in Rhode Island, where all the trusts are in favor of the Democratic party.

"I am also told by the Chicago American that the financial oil interests in Ohio are in favor of the Democratic party.

"Of course my information may be wrong, Mr. Rockefeller may be right. I know one thing positively, however, and that is that the Standard Oil Company is sometimes for the Democratic party and sometimes for the Republican party. But it never has been for the Independence party, nor has Mr. Hisgen nor the Independence party ever been subservient to the Standard Oil.

FOUND CUTICURA INDISPENSABLE
For Her Children—Little Girls Suffered with Itching Eczema Which Simply Covered Back of Heads—Baby Had a Tender Skin, Too.
ALL PROMPTLY CURED BY "WONDERFUL OINTMENT"
"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. Before I heard about Cuticura, I used to have a lot of everything, but they failed. Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children a few times with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby now and I am using that the folds of skin on his neck were broken and even bled. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment this morning and the trouble had disappeared. I am using the Cuticura Remedies all the time, as they are of my family have any sores. I can recommend them to any mother, especially; it is indispensable in every home. I cannot find its equal. O'MEARA WARNS POLICE ABOUT TECH PARADE

"Exercise Firmness and Keep Your Temper," Commissioner Tells Officers.

In view of the Tech. riot four years ago when the student paraders and spectators battled with the Back Bay police in Copley square, Police Commissioner O'Meara has issued special orders regarding the way in parade of the Intercollegiate Republican Students' Club is to be handled tonight.

The Commissioner says the police will need to exercise in the highest degree the qualities of firmness and good common sense.

But the Commissioner adds:

"In dealing with persons in the procession and with spectators, the police will remember that the spirit of the occasion justifies a reasonable relaxation of the strict rule of order which should prevail usually in the streets. Clean fun and honest enthusiasm are not to be checked; but rowdyism or acts involving injury or danger of injury to persons or property must be treated as they would be treated at any other time or in any other part of the city.

"Should the police be resisted while in discharge of their duty, they will maintain the law with all the force at their command."

Superintendent Pierce says:

"Tech or no Tech, the law must be obeyed."

Captain Frank Jones of Back Bay station, whose division the parade will chiefly fie, will have 300 men on parade duty.

"I will allow the boys to enjoy themselves," he says, "and will not for a moment think of arrests unless absolutely inevitable."

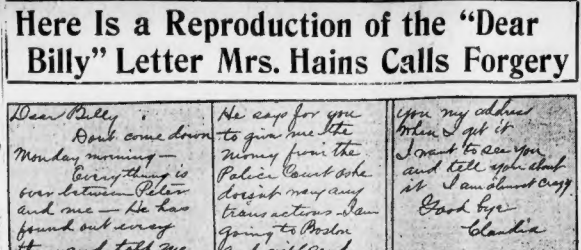
Here Is a Reproduction of the "Dear Billy" Letter Mrs. Hains Calls Forgery



Dear Billy
Don't come down Monday morning—
Everything is over between Peter and me—He has found out every thing and told me about it last night
He says for you to give me the money from the Police Court as he doesn't want any transactions—I am going to Boston and will send you my address when I get it
I want to see you and tell you about it—I am almost crazy
Good bye

MAID TELLS OF REVELS AT THE HAINS HOUSE

WHISKEY, CIGARETTES AND "BILLY" FIGURE IN GIRL'S REMARKABLE STORY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Revels in the home of Captain Peter C. Hains, at Fort Hamilton, while he was on his trip to the Philippines last Winter, were related yesterday by Lillie Sawyer, a former maid in the Hains home, now living on Fleet street, Brooklyn. Lillie Sawyer remained in Mrs. Hains's employ for three months. Her complete story is to be taken in affidavit form by Joseph A. Shay, of counsel for the defense. She told it to Captain Hains, after his return from the Philippines, and repeated it a few days ago to Major Hains, the captain's brother. Here is her story in her own language:

"I started to work for Mrs. Hains in September, 1907. Captain Hains was home at the time; he went away in the latter part of October. I stayed with Mrs. Hains until the last day of December, doing the work of chambermaid and acting as nurse for the two younger children.

"I saw William F. Annis—or 'Billy,' as Mrs. Hains used to call him—more than ten times. The first time was a year ago this election day. That was three weeks after the captain went away. I had been out, and came back about a quarter to twelve at night. The front door was usually unlocked, but when I tried it this time I found it locked. I banged on the door and Mrs. Hains opened it.

"Does Minnie Want a Drink?"

"She said to me: 'The door was unlocked.' I let it go, although I thought it funny she would insist the door was locked every night. She turned and went into the parlor. There was no light in the parlor, but there was a lamp burning in the dining room; it was turned down very low.

"I went up to Minnie, the cook's room, and said to her: 'What is Mrs. Hains doing down here in the dark?' She looked at me kind of queer and said, 'She likes a light there.' I said that I thought that the light was in the dining room and that it wasn't doing much good where it was down so low. I could tell from the way Minnie talked that she knew something she didn't want me to know.

"Presently Mrs. Hains hollered up for Minnie. Minnie had gone to bed, so I answered and asked if I could do anything for her. She said, 'Ask Minnie if she wants anything to drink.' Sure she does, I replied, without asking. Minnie told her to get out of bed and come down for it, said Mrs. Hains.

"Then the man, Mr. Annis, appeared at the foot of the stairway and called up: 'Tell Minnie if she wants a drink to come after it.' He had his coat off, was just in his shirt sleeves. I took a square look at him and noticed he was bald-headed, but he wasn't bad looking. I told Mrs. Minnie couldn't get up for the drink because she only had on her night dress and was in bed.

Sat on Floor Laughing.

"They laughed, Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis, and they came upstairs and went into Minnie's room. I went in, too. The man commenced cracking jokes, then he played tricks. He'd put money in his hand and try to hide it. He did a nickel between his fingers and told me if I could find it I could have it. I found it always 'twas yours,' I took it. Then he took up a pack of cards and began doing tricks.

"Mrs. Hains sat on the floor most of the time laughing. She had been drinking and her face was flushed.

"Presently Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis brought up a quart bottle of whiskey and one of gin. Minnie furnished the glasses. Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis drank from both bottles, but I didn't notice any gin being drunk.

"Mrs. Hains kept calling him 'Billy.' He called the whole lot of us 'Mrs. Hains finally got pretty intoxicated and began acting foolish. She seemed to forget I was there. She tried to do some—

"It looked awful funny to me to see the gentleman carrying on like that.

"This kept up until nearly 2 o'clock, and then he says, 'What time is it? I must be getting late.' 'No,' says Mrs. Hains, 'it isn't late.' He sat down beside Minnie, and Minnie laughed and giggled.

"I didn't see him again for nearly a week, and then he came to the house with some men friends. Mrs. Hains's cousin, a young woman, was there. They all were in the dining room when I went in and were laughing and drinking and having a fine time. I think it was on a Saturday night. They made a big deal of noise.

"Mrs. Hains Always Smoking."

"Whenever Mr. 'Billy' would come to the house he'd always go into the kitchen and say 'Hello' to us. He would always help himself at home. He'd sit in the parlor with Mrs. Hains and they'd have lunch, talk, drink and smoke cigarettes. Mrs. Hains was always smoking.

"In between the visits Mr. 'Billy' made to the house Mrs. Hains used to go out almost every day. She would say she was going to the bank to get some money. One time when she went out she says to me: 'Lillie, I'll get your money for you to-day.' When she came back there was no money. She said she'd been out with 'Billy.'

"Mrs. Hains used to stay away from home quite a few nights. One morning she went out with her cousin at 9 o'clock in the morning, and she told me they were going to the mountains. She said she was to meet 'Billy' at the bridge, and he would take her and her cousin in the automobile somewhere.

"When Mrs. Hains came back she was with Mr. 'Billy.' She told me she'd been to the mountains.

"Had Been Out Bumming."

"Another time she and her cousin went out in the morning and they didn't get home till night, and they were hungry and showed signs of too much drink. Mrs. Hains said they had been out 'bumming.' They started for a dog show, but they didn't get there—although they sure did look like a dog show.

"Mrs. Hains and her cousin had a way of going out after lunch and not getting back until 5 in the morning. They usually went after Mrs. Hains had done some telephoning. One morning I woke up when they came in. It was 5 o'clock. They laughed and talked loud coming up the stairs.

"Some nights when they didn't have company Mrs. Hains and her cousin would sit on the floor—they liked sitting on the floor—and smoked cigarettes and drank. Mrs. Hains never seemed to pay much attention to her children. I took care of the two little ones, Buster and the baby. Peter never took to me; he was too fresh, anyway.

"I saw Mr. 'Billy' in Mrs. Hains's room one day. One of Mr. Billy's men friends had come with him, and Mrs. Hains's cousin was there, too. Mrs. Hains came into the pantry and asked me if I was going out. I hadn't any idea of doing it, but I told her 'Yes,' and so I had to go out. When I came back I found the four of them all up in Mrs. Hains's room playing cards.

Told Me to Get Whiskey.

"I put the children to bed, and soon after Mrs. Hains and the rest of them came down stairs. They wanted something to drink, but there wasn't anything in the house. Mr. 'Billy' gave me a $2 bill and told me if I'd get some whiskey I could keep the change. I got it and kept the change.

"Mrs. Hains's cousin and Mr. 'Billy's' friend went upstairs then. While they were up there, Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis sat in the dining room and drank. I peeped into the room once and saw her sitting on the floor at the fire.

"A few days before I left, the new maid, who had come to take my place, went into the parlor where Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis were sitting. I heard Mrs. Hains say: 'This is my affinity,' nodding to Mr. 'Billy.' The girl came out and says to me: 'That's a swell way to introduce a person.'

"Mrs. Hains called me down to me and asked if I had ever seen Mr. 'Billy' at the house with his wife I had to tell the truth."

SAYS HUSBAND KICKED HER

That her husband kicked her was testified to in the Suffolk Divorce Court before Judge Dana to-day by Mrs. Ada Harmes, who is seeking freedom from her husband, Dwight, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment.

She testified that they were married in 1900 and that she left him in February, 1907, because of his ill-treatment. The husband was in court, but did not contest the suit.

Only One "BROMO QUININE"

Call in LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the World over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

We must all use laxatives —we who eat rich foods and exercise too little. The best way to take them is a Cascaret at a time—when you need it.

You know when you need Cascarets.

You feel a certain dullness, a depression—perhaps the approach of a headache.

You say, "I must take something tonight." But why do you waste the day?

It is easy to keep at your best at all times, if you'll do it.

The way is to carry a box of Cascarets with you. Take one just as soon as you need it.

Then the clouds rise at once.

The need for Cascarets is a natural need. Don't think that you are drugging yourself.

We must get a laxative some way. If we don't get it through exercise, and through proper food, we must get it otherwise.

Cascarets are the next best way.

Ask your Doctor about it.

He will tell you that the day of the violent purgative is past. The day of pills, salts, castor oil and cathartics.

This is the day of the gentle in medicine, the natural, the pleasant.

Cascarets act just as certain foods act—just as exercise acts—on the bowels.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

FARMER IS BADLY GORED BY A BULL

RICHMOND, Me., Oct. 30.—Frank W. Yeaton is laid up with severe injuries as the result of an accident sustained while leading a bull by a ring in his nose. The bull broke away and then cornered him. He gored Mr. Yeaton in the back, fractured several ribs, injured his arm, legs and scratched him about the face. Mr. Yeaton was thrown through a doorway and the door swung, to, which probably saved his life.

TELLS OF BRIBE IN DIVORCE PLOT ON MRS. GOULD

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Elijah W. Sells of the firm of Haskins & Sells, public accountants, concluded his testimony today at the hearing before Referee Edward G. Whitaker in the suit brought by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould against her husband, Howard Gould, for divorce.

Mr. Sells said his wife is a close friend of Mrs. Gould, and he interested himself in her case because he believed she was the victim of a plot hatched by her husband to blacken her character and degrade her.

On cross-examination by Delancey Nicoll, counsel for Howard Gould, Mr. Sells testified that he had never seen any signs of intoxication in Mrs. Gould. He said he had known her to drink wine at meals, and cordials afterward, but never saw her drink whiskey.

Offered $2,000 for Evidence.

Mr. Sells told of investigating a plot against Mrs. Gould at the St. Regis Hotel, when she was living there. He wrote that he learned that House Detective Kennedy at the St. Regis had offered another employe, Michael Doody, $2,000 to give false evidence against Mrs. Gould.

"I obtained three affidavits from residents of Newcastle, L. I., where I have a farm, testifying to the good character of Mrs. Gould," the witness said. "These were sworn to by Vito Mira, Herbert Hill and Isaac Tripp. I obtained another affidavit from a maid in my employ at Euclid Hall, as to the good behavior of Mrs. Gould."

Girl Defends Friend.

The daughter of the witness, Miss Marjorie Sells, a beautiful and fashionably gowned young woman, who said she was twenty-one years old, followed her father to the stand. She proved an excellent witness and skillfully warded off questions by Mr. Nicoll on cross-examination.

"I have known Mrs. Gould since I was a little girl," she said, "and I regard her as my dearest friend. In all the time I have known her I never heard her use profane language or speak in a coarse, abusive way to servants. Her voice is very mild and pleasant.

"During the year 1905, when it has been charged that she was intoxicated frequently, I was with her a great deal. I never saw her under the influence of liquor.

When asked about Mrs. Gould's drinking, Miss Sells declared that she drank only in moderation.

"We had nothing for lunch," she said, "and only champagne for dinner. Mrs. Gould usually drank one or two glasses. I never saw her under the influence of liquor."

PRESCRIPTION PURIFIES BLOOD

Neutralizes Poisonous Acids and Stops Rheumatic Pains and Catarrh

The following prescription is very simple, but is the most effective obtainable for neutralizing acid poisons in the blood and relieving rheumatism, and all its kindred ailments; it will also quickly restore the system to a healthy condition. Any one can prepare this simple mixture.

"One ounce Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris Compound; half pint high grade whiskey. Mix and use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time. The bottle must be well shaken each time.

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

The good effect of this treatment is said to become apparent after the first few doses and that it is a remarkable system builder and renovator.

Keliher Express Trust Tool in Congress, Says Auerbach

Junius T. Auerbach last night told hundreds of citizens of East Boston and Winthrop how Congressman John A. Keliher fought for the Express Trust and against the interests of the people who demanded a parcels post service by the government.

"This bill," said the Independence League nominee for Congress in the Ninth district, "would save the money of the homeowning end of all the citizens of our cities and towns. They would no longer be compelled to pay extortionate express charges, and shopping could be done by women from their homes at slight expense.

"Public spirited citizens had for years petitioned Congress to enact a parcels post law, but the combined express companies were always powerful enough to prevent action.

"And John A. Keliher, true to his traditions in the State House, and true to his record for six years in Congress voted in the closing days of the last Congress in favor of the Express Monopoly, and against the people."

Hundreds Brave Rain.

Applause and cheers greeted Mr. Auerbach's words, both in Bibby Hall, East Boston, and in the town hall at Winthrop.

This was the third rainy night on which the League nominee had spoken, but hundreds braved the downpour to hear him here Keliher's record.

After he had shown that the Democratic nominee had opposed every measure which was in the people's interest, with striking consistency, a number of ones became a solid political parties came forward and asked Auerbach of their support at the polls.

Mr. Auerbach said:

"I have spent eight nights the record of John A. Keliher, and day after day the record grows no higher. He has been wrong, wrong, wrong on every measure of popular good that has come before him as representative of this district and as a Congressman of the United States. Still the popular measures which John A. Keliher opposed or defeated, a majority of the people of this district.

"John A. Keliher was essentially the only Northern Democrat to vote against the pure food bill. But the pure food bill became a law, and the adulterators and the food poisoners have been driven out of business. (Applause.)

Promised Heeler a Gas Job.

The corrupt practices act, which John A. Keliher opposed, is now a law. Do you suppose he could have forseen being called upon to present a public record of his campaign expenses of $3,500, which he has admitted spending in the recent canvass? The $3,500 is correct, but the real sum, it is said, amounts to four times that in money and five times over in promises.

Wondered If Promises Would Be Kept.

"Yesterday I thought that the states man's record—"no," he laugh, I said "statesman"—would be the better for some revitalizing, and I thought it would project his record on a screen in Hayes square, Charlestown, so that all would have to read as to the character and acts of their representative.

"The very first person who was asked to rent a front basement, so that the projection apparatus could be installed, a woman answered:

"I can't do it. I care nothing about Keliher, but he's promised my brother a job with the gas company if he's elected."

Then any connection now between a man without an occupation, plenty of money and twelve years of public holding and every act against the public interest? (Applause.)

Fought Eight-Hour Day.

"The eight-hour day bill has become operative on public work, despite the efforts of John A. Keliher, who worked hand in hand with the corporations of the country to delay and hinder that great demand, that eight hours should constitute a day's work.

"He dodged the issue on the telephone charges, but the bill became a law, and telephone rates have been reduced.

"He opposed the playground bill. Pleasure giving to this district playgrounds and breathing places for your children—but the playground bill afterward became a law.

"He fought the two-cent-a-mile railroad bill with all the vigor he was known for to command when corporation measures come up for his consideration, yet the two-cent rate has now been put into effect voluntarily by the great railroads of the State.

"He opposed the bill compelling street railway companies to vestibule their cars. Public sentiment and all sense of humanity brought the fears to the eyes of every man, woman and child in the State, but this bill, despite Keliher, became a law.

"He even so little a thing as the stamping of milk bottles, to guarantee the purity of milk, and John A. Keliher voted against the interests of every man, woman and child in the Commonwealth. But this bill, too, became a law. John A. Keliher was making a misstatement in the petition which sought his record is consistent. He was against the people's interests on every occasion.

Steel Trust Emissary.

"Though all of the parties declare for reform in the matter of injunctions, yet we find John A. Keliher presenting a petition direct from the Steel Trust. Workmen are jailed without trial, and union cannot enforce their own rules. John A. Keliher presented the petition which sought to aid the continuance of such a procedure.

"All parties declare for the rebuilding up of our mercantile marine, but John A. Keliher opposed the ship subsidy bill, which, if enacted into law, would restore the commerce of Boston, and our flag would float in yonder harbor, where now we see on the masthead of our shipping only England, French and German flags.

Mr. Auerbach then spoke of Keliher's fight against the parcels post, and referred to his own record, saying that he could point to a record of public acts subservient to the public interest, that he had betrayed nobody, and sold out to nobody.

"I fought the Charlestown Gas Company for cheaper gas," he said, "and though pitted against former Attorney-General Pillsbury I came out first and Charlestown has cheaper gas; all Boston has cheaper gas through my efforts. I have opposed the railroad trust, the electric light monopoly, the Boston Elevated, where monopoly and greed attempted to rob the people of their rights. I have done my level best to stop wrong.

"I do not believe that Mr. Keliher's record will appeal to a single man in this audience. I am a new man. Now if he is for sale, see if he is overawed by money. You have heard the evidence, return a verdict." (Applause.)

100 IN CHASE FOR PAIR WHO HELD UP GIRL

With hundreds of people walking by, Rose Dato, seventeen years old, of No. 120 Franklin street, Arlington, was held up in Fort Hill square by two men at noon today. They grabbed her pocket book and dashed down High street.

Miss Dato screamed for help. Several men heard her and started on the run for the two men, who were just disappearing around the corner of Atlantic avenue. The chase was taken up by others, until more than 100 men were following the robbers.

At Rowe's wharf the two men mixed with the crowd and were lost. The police have a good description of them and several plain clothes men were detailed on the case.

One is about twenty-five years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. He was dressed in a brown suit and wore a black derby hat. The other is about twenty-seven, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. He wore a black suit and black derby hat.

STOLEN GEMS SCATTERED IN STRANGE TRAIL

The Cambridge police are mystified by the strange disposal of gold watches, gems and other valuables stolen by false gas workers from the home of Mrs. Catherine Lonergan at No. 237 Rindge avenue, North Cambridge, on the afternoon of September 24.

Every day or two since some of the missing articles have been found on the streets or in yards near Mrs. Lonergan's home. Why the thief threw away his loot, which in all was valued at more than $1,500, is something detectives cannot explain.

Three gem-studded gold watches were taken which were valued at $500. The cases of two, minus works, have been found. Yesterday part of a gold chain valued at $20 was picked up near the Lonergan home, and a policeman found, under his bedroom window, a gold purse which had been studded with amethysts. The precious stones had been taken out, however. This morning in a nearby yard a very valuable emerald ring was picked up.

FATHER O'GRADY GETS $50,000 IN HUB

During a testimonial, reception and dance given in his honor by the societies of Greater Boston in Curtis Hall, Jamaica Plain, last night, Rev. Patrick O'Grady of Ireland said he had received something like $50,000 since he came to Boston six months ago. He is raising a fund for higher education in Ireland. Next week Father O'Grady visits California.

HEALTH

We have learned in recent years, depends upon the power of our systems to withstand the ravages of the germs of disease. One of the best known germicides of modern science is Sozodont's Sulpho-Napthol. A few drops in a pail of water will rid the home of obnoxious microbes, while at the same time it is a wonderful aid in dispelling dirt, grease and grease. Vermin and insects will not tolerate the house where Sulpho-Naptol is used. A few drops in your bath is also a great preventive against such germs as may produce serious ills.

Sold only in yellow bottles by druggists and grocers for 10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Never sold under any other name. Beware of imitations. Sulpho-Napthol Company, 20 Haymarket Sq. Manufacturers. Sawyer Crystal Blue Company, Selling Agents, Boston, Mass.

PROPOSALS.

THE SUPPLY DEPARTMENT, City of Boston, invites proposals for Meat, Fish, Straw, Oats, Hay and Groceries for the Institutions for the month of November, 1908. The Hay must be weighed on Scale No. 2 of the Mystic River Bridge and the Oats must be No. 2 white clipped oats, to weigh 34 lbs. per bushel. Bidders will be required to be weighed when delivering. The Supply Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Bidders must furnish a bond of one-third the value of contract with a surety company authorized to do business in Massachusetts as surety for fulfilling the contract, and leave at said office on or before 12 M. on the 2d day of November, 1908, a certified check for 5 per cent. of bid, which is to be forfeited to the City of Boston if the bidder fails to carry out his proposal. The successful bid will be duly opened and read at the above time and place, and the undersigned reserves the right to accept any and all proposals. WALTER P. BURR, Secretary, Institute of Supplies.

GOV. GUILD IS MUCH BETTER

Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., who has been confined to his house for the past two days with gastritis, is so much improved that he is up and around the house today. By Monday he will be able to take up his duties at the State House.

The following bulletin was issued by secretary Bent at noon today:

"The Governor is much improved. He was around the house to-day and will be at the State House Monday morning."

KILLS FIANCEE.

PUEBLO, Oct. 30.—Fearing that Mrs. Elizabeth M. James, to whom he was engaged, would become reconciled with her divorced husband and throw him over, Edward Hager, a foundryman, shot and killed the woman in her own home and fled.

TAFT VISITS SHERMAN HOME

SYRACUSE, Oct. 30.—Mr. Taft turned eastward to-day for an easy trip through Oneida County, the home of his running mate, James S. Sherman, to be followed by a late afternoon dash to Buffalo, where he is to have a hard night of stumping. For once the schedule laid out for the Republican candidate gave him a chance to get some late morning sleep, the first stop being at Oneida at 10.25. Mr. Taft slept in his private car and was still resting when the train pulled out at 9:40.

If you haven't yet heard Janius T. Auerbach, independence candidate in the Ninth district, hear Auerbach to-night at Commonwealth Hall, Meridian street, East Boston. Auerbach lets in the light on Keliher's corporation record.

BRYAN LEAVES FOR THE WEST

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 30.—W. J. Bryan has finished his campaign in New York State. He left early to-day for Ohio, where he will speak on his way West to Lincoln. He still considers, as does Mr. Taft, that New York is the crucial State. His last speeches were in Madison and Onondaga Counties. The most enthusiastic Democrats acknowledge that this part of the State will return a substantial majority for the Republican ticket, yet Madison and Onondaga gave Mr. Bryan as great a reception as he received anywhere in the State.

Mr. Bryan finished his campaign in this State fresher than he started.

Another Step in Cheaper Lighting

Friday, October 30, 1908.

First

The cost of electric lighting in Greater Boston was cut from 15c to 12c per thousand last July. This alone was a reduction of 20%.

Second

The High Candle Power Tungsten lamp came next, with a saving of over one-half the electricity consumed. Appreciating this great advantage, already 90% of our customers using high candle power lamps have equipped themselves with the Tungsten.

Third

The demand for these lamps has been so great that they are now produced in large quantities and the manufacturers have reduced the prices very materially.

Fourth and Best of All

The Tungsten lamps can now be supplied in 20-candle power size.

Beginning to-day, 20-candle power Tungsten lamps will be for sale that use only one-half the current of the old 1-6 candle power size, although giving 25 per cent. more light

Reduced Prices on Tungsten Lamps

These Prices Are Less Than the Market Rate

20 Candle Power 60 Cents Not Previously Manufactured

32 Candle Power 75 Cents - - - - - - Former Price $1.00
50 Candle Power 90 Cents - - - - - - Former Price $1.10
80 Candle Power $1.10 - - - - - - - Former Price $1.25

Old lamps must be given in exchange, except on new installations

With Tungsten Lamps at the lowered cost
With smaller candle power lamps now available

POVERTY OF BLOOD

MANY PEOPLE SUFFER FROM SIMPLE ANÆMIA.

A Professional Nurse at Melrose, Who Cured Herself, Tells Others How to Obtain Relief.

In no disease is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anæmia, or poverty of the blood. This disorder is common in persons who are overworked or confined within doors and makes its approach in so stealthy a manner that it is often well developed before its presence is recognized.

But taken in time the disease is readily curable, the specific being a tonic medicine which increases the number of red blood-corpuscles thus enabling the blood to carry the life-giving oxygen to all the tissues of the body. Such a tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have had unbounded success in curing this stubborn disease because of this wonderful property. The cure of anæmia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything in medical science.

Mrs. Alice M. Durgin, a professional nurse, of 405 Pleasant street, Melrose, Mass., was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after a year's treatment with a doctor had failed to help her. She says:

"A few years ago I was all run down and the doctor told me I was suffering with anæmia. I had had spells when I would be unconscious for hours. These fainting spells would come on me suddenly and without any warning. I became very weak, lost flesh, had no ambition and was discouraged and despondent. My appetite was of no account. Thinking that a change of climate might do me good, I went to a coast resort in Maine but returned looking still worse and feeling worse.

"My mother having great faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills came home with six boxes of them. While I had little faith in the pills, I tried them and in a short time, not only I but my friends could see they were benefiting me. The pills cured me and I have always recommended them."

A helpful booklet "Diseases of the Blood" will be sent free upon request. If you are suffering from impoverished blood you cannot afford to wait another day before giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a thorough trial.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

GOMPERS MADE MISTAKE, SAYS R. J. M'CARTNEY

League Nominee Criticises Attempt to Deliver Labor Vote —Big Rally at Waltham.

Maynard Hall at Waltham was well filled last night at an enthusiastic rally of the Independence League. A bugle and drum corps escorted the speakers from the railroad station to the hall.

John F. Williams, candidate for Secretary of State, was permanent chairman. The other speakers were William N. Osgood, candidate for Governor; Robert J. McCartney, nominee for Lieutenant-Governor; John A. Coultharst of Boston and George R. Glidden, running for Representative.

Mr. Williams, in his speech, declared that the trusts had driven out the small dealers and manufacturers and stated that the industries to-day were being carried on solely in the interest of the big corporations. He pointed out that the only hope for a change for the better in present conditions lay in the Independence party.

Mr. Glidden stated the principles for which he stands in the campaign. He declared that the power of the government, which had been diverted, should be taken back to the people. He stands for the election of Senators and judges by popular vote. He declared for the initiative, referendum and right of recall, and the control of all monopolies by the government.

Mr. McCartney criticised Samuel Gompers for his attempt to deliver the votes of the laboring men of the country to the Democratic party and stated that Mr. Gompers made a serious mistake when he did not take into consideration the platform of the Independence party, which stands for the very things that labor asks.

Mr. Coultharst briefly outlined the principles and progress of the Independence party and praised the candidates, State and national.

Mr. Osgood was enthusiastically received and delivered a telling speech which is printed in full in another column.

GIRL WINS BIG AWARD FROM 'L'

After a legal battle lasting nearly four years, Miss Catherine Minihan, twenty, living with her parents at No. 210 L street, South Boston, was yesterday awarded damages of $11,125 in the Superior Civil Court against the Boston Elevated Company. On August 31, 1904, Miss Minihan was injured by the derailment of a car on Dorchester street, on which she was a passenger.

CLANS HEAR MAYOR AND M'GREGOR SPEAK

Clan Mackenzie No. 2, O. S. C., held a Hallowe'en concert and ball at Odd Fellows Hall last evening. The guests were Mayor Hibbard, Alexander McGregor, president of the Scottish Charitable Society, and Peter Kerr, royal secretary of the Order of Scottish Clans. Mayor Hibbard gave a brief address. Alexander McGregor outlined the history of the Charitable Society and the Scottish people in America.

ELECTION NIGHT SPECIAL.

The Boston & Albany Railroad will run a special train on election night, November 3, to accommodate persons who come into Boston to see the election news. The train will leave the South Station at 12:30 o'clock at night and will run to Riverside via the main line, stopping at all stations except Cottage Farm.

Votes for New Party Are Not Wasted, Declares Osgood

In his speech at the Independence League rally at Waltham last night William N. Osgood, League candidate for Governor, discussed the claim of the old party politicians that a vote for the new party is a vote wasted. He declared that is not true and retaliated by telling the voters that on the contrary they have been wasting their votes during the last generation by being herded like a flock of sheep to cast their ballots as the Standard Oil, the corrupt money powers and their hirelings have dictated. "What advantages can you point to as the result of blind voting in the past?" asked Mr. Osgood.

He said in part:

"Our enemies and the friends of the trusts and monopolies exclaim, don't vote for the Independence party ticket. You will be throwing your vote away. This is not true.

"If our party is based upon right and true principles it is bound to grow until it becomes the dominant political force in this country. Did the followers of Jefferson and Lincoln throw their votes away? Were their parties wasted in their infancy? Did the American patriots who fell at Bunker Hill and Lexington throw their lives away?

"We would have had no Declaration of Independence and would never have finally gained for the British at Yorktown if these glorious patriots had not died and inspired their fellow countrymen to subsequent noble deeds.

"Did John Brown throw his life away because he was executed? No doubt when the noble-souled martyr marched through the streets of Boston with a rope around his neck there were many living the strike who exclaimed, 'Foolish man, he is throwing himself away,' and yet his name is not abolished. The forces against him are too powerful.

"Driven Like Sheep."

"So now the selfish and the unthinking say, 'What's the use; you may be right, but the money power, the corporations and monopolies are so strong that you can do nothing.'

"If our ancestors had been controlled by such inaction and cowardice we would be still living under foreign rule and paying a tax upon tea. This tax, indeed, was nothing when compared to the unreasonable advance in the price of every necessary of life since the trusts have secured the ownership of our national resources, and enslaved Intemperation.

"Talk about throwing votes away! What have you been doing for the last generation? You have, like blinded sheep, been driven to the polls and cast your ballots as Quay, Penrose, Ryan and their subservient Senators and Congressmen directed. You have been throwing your votes away for years. You cannot point to any material improvement in your own condition as citizens. It is easier or more difficult for your son to start in a new business on small capital and succeed now than it was when you were young? Can you live as economically, and have as much comfort as formerly? Can you buy flour as cheap, or meat, or coal, or sugar? What advantage can you point to as the result of your blind voting in the past? Is there personal advantage to yourself or your families?

"Who Gets Increment?"

"They tell us the country is growing richer and richer. This may be true, but who gets the increment? Is it the exploited people or those who have seized the natural monopolies of the land and who are using the money of the people deposited in banks, trust and insurance companies, etc., for that very purpose? Do you get a fair share of this great increase in natural wealth? Certainly not.

"Instead you are told that we are growing great, that we ought to have a big navy, plenty of big colonies, big canals, in order that the enormous profits resulting from the great taxation of the American people to accomplish these great undertakings shall flow into the public treasury for the benefit of the whole people, or that they shall be poured into the private pockets of a ruling plutocracy.

"Prices Will Go Up."

"If you do not vote for the principles of the Independence party you will only defer still more the day of equal opportunity and the destruction of special privilege.

"The price of necessaries will be yet further advanced, until more heroic remedies are resorted to than the mere task of going to the polls and quietly depositing correctly marked ballots. But we mustn't whisper of revolution and the use of force by the descendants of those who now neglect this simple political duty. It is much 'saner' to endure a system of domestic taxation more onerous and unjust a thousand times than that endured by the colonists. They were not rich, neither were they poor. They were at least equal in opportunities and worldly goods. Besides, they were oppressed by foreign foes opposed to our institutions, while we are oppressed by unpatriotic countrymen and hypocritical leaders of our country, who endow universities and bribe the teachers of American youth.

"Do not talk of throwing away votes by voting for the new party founded upon truth, justice and principles that have been carefully and scientifically considered."

TWAIN THINKS BURGLARS MAY 'GET' CONGRESS

REDDING, Ct., Oct. 30.—Mark Twain yesterday addressed the local library association on "Books and Burglars." The fact that his home was burglarized recently embittered his speech somewhat, for he talked this way:

"Suppose this library had been in operation a few weeks ago and the burglars who happened along and broke into my house, first made entry into this institution.

"Picture them seated here on the floor poring by the light of their dark lanterns over some of the books they found, and thus absorbing moral truths and getting a moral uplift. The whole course of their lives would have been changed.

"For all we know they may next be sent to Congress."

Robert J. McCartney, who was the New England president of the ironmolders when Eben S. Draper broke his pledge to the molders and ordered the employes to withdraw from the union, says:

Every workingman who wishes to make his protest against Eben S. Draper most effective will vote for William N. Osgood, the candidate of the Independence League, for Governor.

WANTED ALSO IN BOSTON AS SWINDLER

Robert B. Otis of Amesnia, Ct., who was arrested in Buffalo, charged with swindling, by representing himself as a pension auditor, is wanted by the pension authorities in Boston for alleged swindling in Medford, Cambridge, Braintree and the city proper.

TAKES APPEAL ON DECISION IN CUSTOMS CASE

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 30.—U. S. Collector for this port, George W. Gardiner, has appealed from the decision of the General Appraisers of New York, relative to the payment of 5 per cent. duty on many hundred dollars worth of buffalo hides recently imported into this country for the A. & C. W. Holbrook Company of Providence.

The appeal has been made owing to the duty which Collector Gardiner imposed when he rated the hides as those coming under the use as hides of "cattle." From this rating the Holbrook Company appealed after paying the duty under protest. The appeal was taken before Judge Arthur L. Brown in the United States Court here yesterday. Judge Brown has ordered a few papers in the case to be brought before the court here at a later date.

Canova's Napoleon

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

IN the year 1802 the French Ambassador at the Court of the Holy See called upon the sculptor, Antonio Canova, to inform him that he was wanted at Paris to execute a bust of the First Consul, already in all fundamental respects the "Great Napoleon."

About this famous bust, finished in 1806 and given to Wellington by Louis the Eighteenth soon after Waterloo, it is not necessary that much should be said here. It is around the sculptor rather than his work that the particular interest of this short story gathers.

Against his will, and in spite of his most earnest protests, Canova repaired to the gay capital. How could he contend against the command of the right man at Paris? Willing or unwilling, he must go.

He had scarcely reached the city when he was escorted with all consideration to Saint Cloud, and from the Cour d'Honneur he was conducted by Bourienne into the private apartment of the First Consul.

Shaking hands, Napoleon asked: "How fare the times in Rome?"

"Bad, sir, bad," answered the sculptor. "Rome is about as low down in misery as you are high up in renown. The victories which have rendered your name with Canova's have been fatal to the old mistress of the world."

The Man of Destiny was disconcerted. He had at last been brought face to face with a man, whereas he had been used to dealing with things.

Without Fear or Flattery

"You speak, Signor Canova, without fear," said Napoleon.

"Sire," replied the sculptor, "I speak without flattery."

"Tell me, Signor Canova, is it not well to subdue our enemies?"

"First," answered Canova, "who are our enemies? Are they those who fall to comprehend our motives, or are they those whom we ourselves are unable to see through?"

"It is not always convenient, nor best, to know the reasons of a man's actions so long as they are right," replied the First Consul.

"Sire," said the sculptor, "I do not agree with you."

Here was a man who had a mind of his own, a mind which he was not inclined to surrender even to the most powerful man in Europe.

Having learned Napoleon's wishes sufficiently well to enable him to execute his task, Canova set his face toward his native country.

In 1810 Napoleon, then master of Europe, again summoned the sculptor to Paris, to make for the conqueror of Austerlitz an heroic statue.

Meets Napoleon as Emperor

On the day following his entry into Paris Canova was ushered into the presence of the great Emperor at Fontainbleau. The personalities of the two men were unchanged; the deeper was the sense that life was during the first interview, only his will was now more lordly and his despotism more uncompromising; and the sculptor—well, he was the same honest, fearless, sincere soul, unafraid even in the presence of the most powerful man in the world.

The salutations over, the Emperor ventured to suggest to Canova that it would be well to get a "robe about the great statue."

There was a fine chance for an eloquent time-server to have flattered the imperial vanity by falling in with the idea, replying: "By all means, sire, the robe."

But Canova was not built on that contemptible order. "Sire, God himself could not make a thing of beauty if he should undertake to clothe your statue in imperial robes and French boots. Sculpture, like all other arts, has a language peculiar to itself."

An Unconquerable Soul

Quitting the defensive and assuming the offensive, Canova closed the tilt with this bit of most wholesome advice:

"Sire, you should aim to inspire reverence, instead of fear, in the hearts of your subjects."

"That is my highest desire, Signor Canova," responded the Emperor.

The Emperor lied. He knew nothing about reverence or love. He was an intellectual savage ruler, crushing everything that stood in the way of his personal ambition, without the faintest compunction of conscience.

As Canova was leaving the palace for his second and final benevolent, he was cried out to him: "Signor Canova, wait; you must be used for your service."

"Sire," replied the sculptor, "I demand only the friendship of Prince and the good will of her sovereign. If you are satisfied with my work—enough."

"Andate come volete!" "Go as you please!" were Napoleon's last words to his artist guest at Fontainbleau.

He had at last met one whom he could not conquer, for even the most powerful of despots is able to enslave the soul of a man who is free, self-respecting and brave.

AUTO-GRAPH
WHY THAT'S MY OLD AUTOGRAPH ALBUM! I CAME ACROSS IT UP IN THE GARRET.
I NEVER COULD SEE ANY SENSE IN SCRIBBLING A BOOK FULL OF A LOT OF PIFFLE LIKE THIS!
JUST LISTEN TO THIS.—"THE ROSE IS RED, THE VIOLET'S BLUE SUGAR IS SWEET, AND SO ARE YOU!"
HERE'S SOME MORE TOMMYROT;—"IF YOU LOVE ME AS I LOVE YOU, NO KNIFE CAN CUT OUR LOVE IN TWO!"
BUT LISTEN TO THIS IDIOTIC MUSH!—"YOU'RE A DARLING,—YOU'RE A DAISY,—IF YOU KISS ME I'LL GO CRAZY!" TO FORET FROM DUCKET.
LETS SEE!
WHY DEARIE, THAT'S ONE YOU WROTE YOURSELF BEFORE WE WERE MARRIED! DON'T YOU REMEMBER? YOU USED TO CALL ME DONEY AND I CALLED YOU DUCKET!

Advice About Etiquette and Social Usages

DEAR MISS PELL:

I would like to know what to answer a person who has been introduced and said "I am pleased to meet you." I have heard so many different things, and am at a loss to know which is right. Most of the time both parties say "I am pleased to meet you," or else one answers "thank you." Also, what is proper to say when some one has "begged your pardon?" A READER.

WHEN introduced to a stranger who says "I am pleased to meet you" it is only necessary for you to bow and smile in acknowledgment. When some one begs pardon, you should say, "Pray, don't mention it" or "Not at all."

DEAR MISS PELL:

I would be pleased to know if a matron when calling leaves her card in a card envelope with two of her husband's, or does she leave the cards with no envelope? SIBYL M.

A MATRON in making formal calls leaves one of her own cards for the hostess and one for each daughter that may be in society and receiving with their mother. She should also leave one of her husband's for the host, one for the hostess and one each for the daughters receiving. The cards are either handed to the butler at the door or placed in the card receiver on entering.

DEAR MISS PELL:

Is it considered good form to have an elaborate church wedding and invite to a reception and supper only the immediate bridal party and family, thereby ignoring your most intimate friends? Would it not be better to have a very quiet wedding with the bridal party only present? And does not the first appear more or less to use a smug expression—huff? MAKE GOOD.

THE matter of church weddings and receptions is largely one of choice and convenience. A large church wedding, followed by a supper for the bridal party and their intimates only, is quite correct. You will not ignore your most intimate friends if you invite them to the church, and let them know that the supper afterward does not include a general reception. The question of expense in this matter is one that must regulate procedure. The hour set for the ceremony and the time of departure upon the bridal journey must also be taken into consideration.

Pa Has a Guest at Dinner; and Later Ma Talks and Pa Doesn't Interrupt Her

This pictur is a race track man wich caim to the house to see Pa.

THE picter on my slait today is a picter of a race track man with calm to the house to see Pa last nite. He is a old friend of Pa. beekaus they went to school in Brooklyn together wen thay was little like me. Wen they got thru skool Pa beekaim a newspaper man & the race track man beekaim a book-maker.

Wife, sed Pa, wen the race track man calls in the dear, I want you & shake hands with my frend Jerel Blume, wich has rose, by the force of his grate intelleck, from sheer riffe in book-maker. Pa sed. Jarel, shake hands with my wife, wich rose from her little country girl to be my help mate, sed Pa.

I am glad to meet you, Mister Blume, sed Ma, & Ma gave Pa a funny look wen she sed it. It always give me grate pain, not un-mixed with pain, to meet pure beyhond frends, Ma sed.

Dont mention it, sed Jerel Blume, the pleasure is all mine. I am glad to meet the wife of my dear frend with went to skool with me in Brooklyn. This is a awful weather we are having, Jerel it, sed Mister Blume.

It looks like more rain, or possibly snow, sed Mister Blume. I figger it is about 3 to one (1) that it is rain, & one (1) to 3 that we all snow. Mister Blume sed. What time do we feed.

Then He Cried in His Supe

Dinner is reddy now, sed Ma. Vary well, sed Mister Blume, me for the eats. So Pa & Ma & Mister Blume & me all went in to dinner.

You have a vary swell flat, sed Mister Blume. I used to have a flat like this, but my wife got a divorce & i sinared the furnitur, & brook my nose. I wish I had a hoam, sed Mister Blume, & then he began to cry in his supe.

Never mind, sed Pa, never mind, dear frend. Into each life sum rain must fall, Pa sed. I will lay four (4) to one (1) that it is snow instead of rain, sed Mister Blume. I will lay you the same price, lady, sed Mister Blume to Ma. Place your money, sed Mister Blume to Ma. Place your money, he sed. Sot Likensteen nerver had frend was sung, wife, sed Pa, well we was cumming hoam todite, that the peepul of this main was down trodden & oppresed, & i sed that he was for peepul liberty at the time.

O liberty, sed Pa, we need thee every hour, see & ee old chum Jerel Shall the frooted of the tyrant grind to the dewlabel & gnaw the biskit. See ee of thyne lushes wave like the black flac of the air ship wich floats away our rights? Sooy, sed Pa.

Sweet land of liberty, sed Pa, I sy its rocks & cliffs & thy race tracks, sed Pa, illumind by a thowsiddee [illegible] candler, eats has thrown light on the grate main! Am I right, dear old frend?

Pa Is Very Polite Wen Ma Talks

Yes are rite, sed Jerel Blume. Dear me how one of that bread, Indy, sed Mister Blume, ill take about two. Deth to the foes of liberty. I always like plenty of wood in the wood pile of my stove, sed he Mister Blume.

He looked at Pa & his frend that they did not say enny more all then the dinner & wen Mister Blume was gone Ma insted to [illegible] liberty & Pa dident say enything because he didnt like to interrupt Ma.

Wen I went to bed Ma was talking sum [illegible] ribben loops, or else the opposite end dis- [illegible] appears in the ripples of the hair.

Small wreaths of little flowers are among the charming and girlish hair ornaments for evening wear, but few things are more becoming and nothing is more fashionable than the pink satin rose, coquettishly peeping from among side curls in a well arranged coiffure.

Pink and gold are, perhaps, the dominant hues for general hair decorations, while silver is as popular as black for such purposes.

Rhymo's Joke Falls Flat and He's in Trouble

RHYMO'S little joke about it having just struck two, as he dropped his poem, was received in oppressive silence. His only hope of adjourning the interview is that some kind friend will correctly answer Madame Rhymo's question, and announce the exact time when he reached home.

Of course, Rhymo sees more hands on the clock than there really are. Can you discover which are the imaginary hands, and tell where there are two hands which tell the time correctly?

The question is:

WHAT TIME DID RHYMO REACH HOME?

One hundred puzzle books will be distributed among those who send best answers to "Puzzle Editor," in care of this paper.

The correct answer to Madame Rhymo's question will appear in this page next Sunday, together with names of prize winners. This is Rhymo's last appeal to his fellow-men. He has completed 9,000 to date, but up to date the variety of views he has received has not been great. The following correspondence:

Dear Puzzle Editor:—Rhymo came home at 5:37:30 o'clock in the morning, or 22½ minutes to six.

L. H. FERRIS.

Dear Puzzle Editor:—It's nether four, five, six nor seven; Not even eight, nine, ten, eleven Look at the clock and you will see That they are six minutes to three.

That Rhymo is afraid to go Home in the dark—don't think it's so. When home he goes he always fetches Along his pockets full of matches.

Marrying a Man Is Marrying His Occupation

By DOROTHY DIX.

A PROMINENT and successful doctor has just been sued for divorce by his wife, who alleges that too many of his good-looking female patients were stricken with heart disease by the medico's looks and winning ways.

The physician denies the charge, and reports that his wife ruined his practice by her insane and groundless jealousy every time he got a woman patient with a good, paying, chronic complaint.

This unhappy matrimonial mixup suggests that a girl should take a squint at a man's occupation, as well as at his morals and ability to make a living, before she ties up with him for keeps, and see if his business agrees with her temperament.

For whether a woman realizes it or not at the moment, when she marries a man she espouses his career at the same time, and if it is of the kind that is liable to open on her any of the ills that slay on the safe side of the altar, as exist as far as that particular occupation is concerned, certainly she has no right to ruin his chances of getting along in the world by getting jealous, or grouchy, or saggy, because her husband has to do all the ordinary course of his pursuit or profession.

Holding Hands Is Part of His Job

Even a woman who is as blind as a bat ought to see that no woman who has a spark of jealousy in her system ought to marry a physician, because it is part of a doctor's profession to hold hands and look tender and sympathetic and understandingly at the female sex.

It is the women who are able to pay a physician's fee to be jolted that enable physicians to ride in automobiles, and wear fur coats, and go to Europe, and the unlucky practitioner married to a wife who is constitutionally suspicious of every lady in a pink negligee had as well abandon hope of ever doing anything but a union practice.

Nor should a woman afflicted with the green eye ogle her dentistes with a preacher, unless she is looking out for trouble and wants to be a churchdog to her husband. Like the doctor's, the clergyman's success rests with the sister rather than the brethren, and he preacher can make a hit with the female members of his congregation who is not allowed to listen in peace to the stories of their ills.

The greatest pulpit orator this country has ever known was pulled down from his high estate by his wife's jealousy, and an illuminescible number fry are always on the lookout for new spheres of usefulness because their wives can't distinguish between the souls and the hearts of the pulchritudinous lambs of their flock.

No woman who is possessed of an ever present suspicion should marry a lawyer, because a lawyer is bound to have secrets apart from his profession that it would not do for him to tell to his little tootsy-wootsy wife, who might retail them to the neighborhood.

Nor should a woman should marry a novelist, for she will get the jolt of her life when she reads about the heroine that he secretes and perceives that they are all like, without any entrances with peaches and cream skin and ravishing golden locks, but being done to their knees, and she perceives that she is a short, stout person with a snub nose and a complexion and safe enough help of her own to pin her affections upon.

Actors Simply Must Make Love

No woman of monopolistic tendencies, and who wants a man all to herself, should marry an actor, for it is his stock and trade to make love, and the more fervently he does it the better his success.

Still, no one can deny that it is hard on the wife to have her husband's love-making words of passionate devotion to women in the leading parts of his business, and unless a woman feels that she can behold her husband and the leading lady loving the hoodoo of the play will fall on deaf ears, she had better not marry an actor.

Nor should any who was brought up on prunes and prisms, and to say her prayers before she went to bed, ever think of going married to a man who follows any of the callings that will keep him out late nor intentionally into the grave or the penitentiary, for the woman who marries him makes him a genius or near genius in the estimation of all her friends.

No woman should marry an embryo statesman of Pinance, unless she loves to pay bills and hasn't any objection to being willing to step down and take the second table at restaurants, for the statesman will always get the first place to the lady on the right.

The financier must give his nights and days to the making of money, and anything substance, while the wife gets only the crumbs that fall from the table. Besides, if those satisfy her, if she can feed her appetite for love on the pictures of actors and country places and automobiles, she is happier than she who has a million-dollar-hearted dove that ever pined in a gilded cage.

Perhaps the plain business man, who is subjected to no special temptations from his customers, who has no artistic temperament to be dealt with, and who goes downtown in the morning at 8 and gets back at 6 in the evening, is the least dangerous choice in husbands, so far as accessions go, but he is the one for whom we feel exciting or thrilling, but he is eminently safe.

And that is much. Better a green grass and meadow than a field of fence and the continual danger of affinities.

Fashion Requires Hair Decorations and Neck Ornaments That Match

Tiara, necklace pendant and corsage decorations, matched in jewelled ornaments.

Ribbon and flower ornament worn by a young girl.

Feather and flower hair ornaments with simple neck and corsage decorations.

By MARIE MONTAIGNE.

THIS has become the vogue, with all elaborate evening costumes, to have the hair decorations repeat some scheme of color and adornment in the dress, or else to have such jewels as will be worn in coiffure and upon the neck and corsage made into designs to harmonize with the gowns with which they will be worn.

The most exquisite jewelled ornaments for the hair, which must be matched by neck pendant and corsage embellishment, are made of jet, which is having a decided vogue this season, especially when worn with black or white gowns, rhinestones and turquoise. The several green shades of the same tint's worn a year ago have become so popular for these settings that they may no longer be classed as inexpensive.

Many fine ornaments take different forms this season. There are classic bands of Greek form, in fillets that appear to bind the fluffy curls of American coiffure to the head.

Charming fillets come of satin, twisted in one or more folds, and wrapped around a curved wire foundation. A wisp of tulle is often twisted over and with the satin, and such end of the wire is finished with a rosette, fancy loops of ribbon or cluster of small flowers.

Often one end of the fillet is tipped with a silver rose, and the other with [illegible]

FOUR FINED FOR SELLING CIGARETTES

South Boston Schoolmasters Complain That Laws Are Violated.

APPEALS IN THREE CASES

That the headmasters of the grammar schools in the South Boston district feel that it is incumbent on them to begin some sort of campaign to stop the indiscriminate sale of tobacco and cigarettes, particularly the latter, to young boys, was the declaration of Head Master Amos Leonard of the Lawrence Grammar School, Dorchester street, to Judge Fallon in the South Boston court to-day. This declaration was made in the course of the hearing of the charges against some dealers in periodicals and tobacco, that they had sold tobacco and cigarettes to minors.

Four persons were before the court to answer to that charge, Samuel Kline, who has a place of business at C street and Broadway, and his clerk, Kolah Katz; Belle Lozier, C and Gold streets, and Mollie Hoch, No. 44 Third street.

Fines of $10 each were imposed. The first three appealed and were held in $200 bonds for their appearance in the Superior court. The Gold woman paid the fine.

RETURNS FOR MERCHANTS.

It Seems Like Terrible Nightmare—Mrs. Silsby

Sketch by BOSTON AMERICAN artist of Mrs. Rose A. Silsby after her release on bail from the East Cambridge jail where she has been held on manslaughter charge for killing Clinton E. Childs.

WALTHAM, Oct. 30.—There was a happy reunion at the Silsby home when Mrs. Rose A. Silsby reached here from the East Cambridge Jail, from which she was released on $3,000 bail.

"How happy I am," said Mrs. Silsby today. "You cannot know what I have been through. That terrible night when Clinton E. Childs tried to break into my daughter Frankie's room, and when I fired at him, and the arrest and all seem like a terrible nightmare.

"As I look around my little home here I can hardly believe I am back again. I look at the windows and expect to see bars there. When I went into my bedroom I could see the bed dipper and the black walls of my prison cell formed, and there was the cot.

"Oh, it was terrible!

"Shall I ever get over it?

"When I got out of prison and stood on the steps I seemed to think it was a bright spring day, and the birds were singing. Of course it was dark and gray and raining, and the people in the streets were thousands of miles away. But I was so happy.

"My husband was with me and spoke kind words of encouragement, and I knew it was to be only a few hours at most until we, Rhea, Frankie and my boy Charlie here would be all together. Home again once more.

"I never before knew what it meant, home, home, sweet home."

Mrs. Silsby broke down and began to weep softly. Her daughter Frances put her arms about her mother and told her not to weep.

"I know I ought not to, but it's for very joy," said the woman. "They were so kind to me in the jail. Sheriff Fairbairn is a great big-hearted man, and he used to stand at my cell for hours trying to see what he could do for me to take my mind from that terrible night.

"When I finally had the charge reduced from murder to manslaughter and began to take hope he came to me and wanted to know if I would not like to rest my mind by writing in the laundry.

"Oh, how sweet that was—to work. You can never realize the blessed privilege of work until you are deprived of it.

"I could not concentrate my mind to read, and there were the twenty-four hours with their 1,440 minutes each day, and every minute an hour, and nothing to do but think over the past—the terrible past with its mistakes and all that, and think what might have been had I only known.

"And I have so many kind friends and neighbors for me. They are most kind. They want to do all they can for me, and the mothers, know how I felt and why I shot Clint Childs.

"It is a terrible thing to do, to kill a man, but there are worse things than even that, and it was the only alternative I had to shoot him down like a dog when he tried to injure my little girl. But I must not talk. I can only be thankful.

"I am home, home, sweet home. With God's providence I hope never again to be taken from it and shall always try to prove by my life that I am worthy of it and the kind husband who has brought me back with him."

Attend the rally at Commonwealth Hall, Meridian street, East Boston, to-night. Junius T. Azerbarth, independence candidate for Congress, is telling some things about Congressman Keliher that you should hear.

WILEY WINS AT BILLIARDS.

The ninth game in the class B billiard tournament at the Hub billiard rooms between Wiley and Franklin was won by the former, 200 to 163. Wiley's high run was 21; average 3 28-51.

GOOD BILLS AT LOCAL HOUSES DRAW CROWDS

Splendid Attractions at Theatres Win Laurels from Artistic Audiences.

PLAYS THAT ARE COMING

This week ends the run of "The Round-Up" at the Hollis Street Theatre, and the bill next week will be Lillian Russell in "Wildfire," a racing comedy.

"The Girl Behind the Counter" is one of the best drawing shows seen in Boston this season and the praise of those who see it swells the business of the house all the time.

"The Merry Widow" has for its last act a scene in a Parisian cafe which is one of the best-staged pictures of Bohemian life ever seen in this country.

Rattling Nelson is doing stunts at the Howard this week which are drawing the fight fans like a real ring contest. The rest of the show is equally attractive.

"When Women Love" is the powerful melodrama being presented at the Grand Opera House. It is a play that hits the bulls-eye every time for those who want a piece with exciting heart interest.

Daisy Lloyd is the youngest and among the cleverest of the famous family of her name, whose members are all noted for stars in London. She is staging at the Orpheum this week.

The Star Theatre program this week includes some of the best pictures ever shown at that popular house, and the illustrated songs are all taking.

Winner in Musical Comedies.

May Ward has a winner in the "The Cash Girl," which is the name of the attraction given at the Globe Theatre this week. There are fifty in the company and the cast includes Saltz Edwards and Tim Cronin.

Anybody who wants to see the real article in the burlesque line can find it at the Palace Theatre this week, where the Casino Girls are making big audiences happy every afternoon and evening.

There is not a matinee known who is more popular with the public than Annette Kellermann, who is a star at Keith's this week and lends a bill replete with interesting features.

"The Hypocrites," which is the strong play being given there this week, "The County Chairman" will be presented at the Boston Theatre by the stock company.

Those who think that Kyrle Bellew is at his best in a swashbuckling role ought to see him in "The Thief." His acting in that remarkable play gives an idea of his great versatility.

Lively Burlesquers.

"The Dorklings" are giving a good show at the Columbia Theatre. It is a bang-up company of burlesquers. The comedians are real fun-makers and all the girls good looking.

The week end bill at the Hub Theatre is one of the best given there so far. The pictures are fine and the vaudeville acts are by performers who are first-class entertainers.

"Slaves of the Orient" is a drama which gives the Bowdoin Square stock company a chance to do first-class acting. It is a strong play in every sense.

"The Soul Kiss" at the Gaiety are attractions which would fill any theatre and the Colonial is no exception to the rule. She is called "the world's greatest dancer."

"The Admirable Crichton" would everything well, and that is true of the acting of the Castle Square Stock Company, where Mr. Craig and his associates are presenting the comedy of that name.

NEW CITY HALL PLANNED FOR PARK SQUARE

Mayor Considering Merchants' Scheme for Municipal Building on This Site.

Before the present year is over the City Council will probably be called upon to pass on the question as to whether or not the old Park Square Station will furnish a suitable site for a new City Hall as Mayor Hibbard would like, but he was considerably put in the Democratic Association municipal building.

The Merchants' Association has taken up the matter with the New Haven road. The property is assessed for $7 per foot, and for a total taxed valuation of upward of $2,000,000.

The plan as now proposed would be to sell the Old Court House, the present City Hall and other municipal sites now occupied for city purposes and the proceeds from these sales would in a large measure defray the expenses of the purchase of the new site.

At the present time the city pays nearly $50,000 annually for outside office rent, $12,000 of this amounting for offices used in the Tremont Building.

Mayor Hibbard does not look with favor on the proposition advanced to take part of the Public Gardens for the purpose of erecting a new city hall.

J. Richard Carter of the Merchants' Association is advocating the matter and though Mayor Hibbard in his inaugural declared himself opposed to "expensive real estate operations" he has been induced to favor the proposition.

ONLY 2 DAYS MORE OF FAIR

Only to-day and to-morrow are left in which to take in the big Boston food fair at the Park Square Coliseum. When the gates opened Friday there was a rush of people from the start, showing that they were determined not to let the fair go by without taking in its manifold attractions. The first 5,000 were paying customers, and day were rewarded by gifts of two souvenirs, a complete plate scene of Boston's new march. "The Fairest of the Fair" and a bag of flour as one of the attractions. To-morrow the first 500 women get a copy of the music and another household souvenir.

The all-guessing contest comes to a close to-morrow night, leading an added interest to the excitement of the duel evening.

Stewart's Boston Band, under leadership of Emil Mollenhauer, his special concert programs for the two final afternoons and evenings. Omnis, the Hindoo sagstery, who dances a piano and a human player to move about in the air, has two demonstrations to-day and two to-morrow, making the last chance for Boston food fair patrons to see this startling Hindoo.

The other features of the free show in the vaudeville hall will be kept up to the closing time and every department of the fair will be run till the doors close.

SIXTY PRIESTS IN CHANT FOR DEAD AT CATHEDRAL

IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL MARKS 3D DAY'S OBSERVANCE OF DIOCESAN CENTENARY.

The third day of the observance of the centenary of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Boston was begun with a solemn mass of requiem for the souls of the deceased bishops, priests and people of the diocese, and the cathedral was filled with the visiting clergy and representatives from all the congregations of the city.

It was expected that Rt. Rev. John J. Brady, auxiliary Bishop of Boston, would be the celebrant of the mass, but he was ill. Bishop C. P. Allen of Mobile took his place. The other officers of the mass were Rev. George J. Patterson, Vicar General of the diocese, deacon; Rev. J. J. Mockler, sub-deacon; and the Rev. M. J. Splaine, master of the ceremonies, assisted by acolytes.

There was a touch of sentiment in the fact that Bishop Allen was celebrant of the mass, as he is at the present time a priest of the diocese of Boston. He was born in Lowell, and at one time did assistant duty at the Cathedral. He was later made president of Mt. St. Mary's college at Emmitsburg, Md., and then was made Bishop of Mobile.

There were about 300 priests in the front pews. Archbishop O'Connell occupied the throne and the other bishops were also on the altar.

The most impressive feature of the ceremony was the very solemn memorial chant by a choir of sixty priests, under the direction of Rev. Father M. J. Scanlan. The pure Gregorian chant was rendered without organ accompaniment.

After the mass the thirtieth annual meeting of the Clergy Fund Society was held, Archbishop O'Connell presided. The society has for its object the caring for of priests who in their declining years become incapable of attending to their priestly duties.

WILL TEST BLOOD AT MURDER SCENE

LOWELL, Oct. 30.—William H. Bent, counsel for Napoleon Rivet, charged with the murder of Joseph Gallieau in a Cheever street plunder case, received notice to-day that Judge White has authorized the employment of two experts to examine the blood found at the scene of the crime, and the chemical, believed to be poison, found on the dead man's lips. The two experts named are Professor William F. Rose of Massachusetts General Hospital and Professor Frederick P. Gay of the Harvard Medical College. The trial will take place about the middle of November.

TURNER GOES TO IDENTIFY $30,000 FRAUD

A. B. Turner, the banker at No. 24 Milk street, started for Chicago to-day to see the men arrested by the Chicago police on a charge of obtaining $30,000 of bonds by means of a worthless check on the Worcester Trust Company signed with the name "Richard F. Parker."

On Sept. 8 a stranger called at Turner's office, looked over some bonds, picked out $30,000 worth which he said he would call for two days later. On Sept. 10, just after banks, the stranger took away the bonds, paying for them with the Worcester Trust Company check signed "Richard F. Parker." The stranger represented himself as a Worcester contractor. The next morning the Worcester Trust Company turned down the check and Turner notified the police.

Yesterday the Chicago officers arrested a man said to be the "Richard F. Parker" in question. It is said that the Chicago officers also have a warrant of their own. But the Boston charge, it is said, takes precedence of any Chicago case. If Turner identifies the man as the bond-buying stranger, the Boston police will make a requisition for him.

FOR GIRLS, TOO.

Girls under sixteen are eligible in the BOSTON AMERICAN handwriting contest as well as boys. There are 250 prizes. They aggregate $500. See details in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Fine materials and expert workmanship count as much in yarns as in any other commodity. The best yarns are the Fleisher Yarns. They are spun by exact methods and have an even, lofty, elastic thread. Each skein is tested before being boxed and is guaranteed.

'CYCLONE' THOMPSON BEATS uNHOLZ IN 11

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—After being sent to the floor twice and then knocked out of the ring in the eleventh round, Roddy Unholz was declared the loser in his fight with Cyclone Thompson. The Boer was not counted out, but was relieved from further battering by police interference. It was quite possible that he was thoroughly satisfied to have a halt called when it came, and for that matter a large percentage of the sports considered that Unholz was more the victim of a weak heart than of Thompson's blows.

Unholz met with his first mishap in the fourth round, when he was sent to the mat with a left swing by backing into a corner. He was down again in the eighth round, by which time it was noticed that he was not using his right hand. As he left his corner after the tenth round he signalled to an acquaintance at the ring side that his right hand was injured.

When he started on the eleventh round his left hand might have been used also for all the use he made of it. He shouldered his way along the ropes warding off Thompson's punches, at times barricading his jaw with rossed forearms. He made no attempt whatever to fight back, as the spectators began to hoot and dub him a quitter.

Thompson all this time was lashing with both gloves and making connections occasionally. It may have been hard work, the work and the continual roughing weakened the Boer, but in any case he began to spread-eagle on the floor. The last punch that reached him put him out on the referee's bare benches, and while he was being pushed back into the ring Captain of Police Anderson walked up on the platform and forbade further fighting.

Referee Jack Welch thereupon directed a verdict for Thompson.

For three rounds the affair was little better than a fin Hun exhibition. The men were in clinches before the clang of the gong had died away, and the referee had to step between and over again.

After Unholz was knocked down in the fourth round the character of the fighting improved. Unholz began dodging away from Thompson's rushes and has stepped in frequently with solid punches at the body. He also tried a few shots at the times, reaching the ribs with good effect apparently.

Thompson's style did not vary. He poked the Boer's head back with straight lefts and then as the round warmed up, hooked a hard right with both hands.

Unholz did well in the seventh round, and had Thompson's nose bleeding freely. In the eighth round the Boer fought at the body mainly, and some of those who had been down on him encouraged him by yelling.

It looked as though his hard punches were beginning to tell when suddenly Thompson sent a right-hander into the pit of the stomach and Roddy sank to the floor with an agonized look.

In the following round again Unholz went to the floor, but it was evident from losing his footing in a wet angle of the ring that the spectators began to boo. After that Unholz dodged around as fast as his legs would go, but try to defend himself.

The twenty-round contest between Johnny Murphy and Lew Powell was a clean, honest battle, and there never was an idle second. It went the limit route without when Referee Rongen declared a decision which no fair-minded sport could cavil at.

JOSS SAYS "VAPOR BALL" WILL BE USED NEXT YEAR

Addie Joss says the proposed abolition of the "spit ball" by certain members of the rules committee is causing much speculation among the fans and players as to whether or not such a move would be advisable.

The general impression seems to prevail that it will not be done. Even though the "spitter" is abolished, the chances are it will not be done away with until the season after next, as it has had at least a year in which to become proficient in the common or garden variety of fooleys.

There is no question but what this form of delivery has had, and always will have, a bad effect on the hitting end of the game. Just like the pitcher who has a "spit ball" working and by that is meant having the break, low and late, it is practically unhittable.

The "vapor ball" takes more of a break than an ordinary curve ball, and what is more, doesn't break by a system. It can be made to break either in or out.

It is practically impossible for the batter to follow this break in the ball, and has the same ability to hit it successfully.

Fans seem to have taken a dislike to this form of pitching, particularly when the opposing hinger has the home batters on the run.

When the home twirler is making misdemeanor of the rules by delivering the "spitter" there is very little said against it.

Another reason for its abolition is that the only excuse for its existence is that it is necessary to use it here and there in a game. Under no circumstances would not have occurred.

This is especially true when the pitcher who is obliged to make a hurried delivery finds he has the wrong side.

A wild peg is the usual result.

But right side up and down, it is unlikely that the "spitter" will be abolished, for it would hardly be fair to the man who depend on this form of delivery for their success.

The pitcher who uses the "dump shoot" has only taking advantage of his peculiar skill in this line, investigation having shown that there is something about merely wetting the ball which makes it so hard to hit.

It took Ed. Walsh, Comiskey's great pitcher, a couple of years to acquire the "spitter," and it would surely be a hardship to deprive him of the use of it after he has worked it to a point where it is a near-perfect.

If it is abolished, plenty of time should be given to the "spit ball" pitchers to get some other form of delivery with which they can retain their effectiveness. One season will surely not be too long.

ALL DEALS ARE DECLARED OFF BY N. E. LEAGUE

There was a meeting of the directors of the New England Baseball League at Clark's Hotel yesterday. Those present were President T. H. Murnane, Secretary J. C. Morse, President Al Wiswell, F. H. Brigham and President Torphy of Fall River, S. D. Flanigan of Brockton, W. R. Rich of Haverhill, besides Ed. Carruth and Jesse Burkett of Lawrence, Joseph Burke of New Bedford, Jesse Burkett and John O'Donnell of Worcester.

All deals made by ex-President Dan Cloherty of the Haverhill club were declared off. Lawrence and Lynn ended all the deals made with Haverhill before the meeting, and the directors voted to call off the deal made by President Cloherty with the Providence Club for Alderson and Perkins.

Manager Mc. Keown made a trade with the New Bedford club of Pitcher Coughlin for Pitcher De Lave.

It was decided to call the annual meeting for Wednesday, November 18.

Lawrence and Worcester will send delegates to the national convention to be held at Chicago November 10.

It He Licks Jack Johnson in Australia;

BURNS TO RETIRE FROM RING

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Tommy Burns, who is resting from the exercise in beating Bill Squires and others of the Australian heavyweight pugilistic division, is spending his time in the mountains of New South Wales. In a letter to me he states that his battle with Jack Johnson for the world's championship is to be the farewell fight of his career.

Burns says that he has promised his wife that he will withdraw from the game after one more go with the big negro. Burns finally decided on this course when, after a theatrical tour of the world, he will probably settle down in Australia. His letter reads as follows:

Is Enjoying Rest.

Mr. W. W. Naughton—Dear Sir: I am enjoying a rest up in the mountains and embrace the opportunity of writing you a few lines. I shall be here for a month, as I have been working very steadily during the past year, and had my hands full with theatrical work and boxing, and now, since the match with Jack Johnson is on, I think it best to put in some time where the air is good and pure.

I have been offered a lot of theatrical engagements, but I want them until after the Johnson fight. I am determined to beat him and silence all talk on the subject before I start into the show business again.

I will surely be in shape for the big fight, better than I ever was—as it is the ambition of my life to beat him. It seems to me that some of the sport writers who have criticised me for my fights with Johnson have not been fair. I have never drawn the color line. There was never a negro before me who gave a colored man a chance to win the championship from him, and I gained a good stiff price for my end of the match. I am getting $5,000 for it as to receive $6,000—win, lose or draw.

Burns Circles Globe.

Those who said that I was a very careful matchmaker want to remember that I am about the only world's champion who went clear around the world, meeting and beating my challengers in the countries they lived in.

When I found Squires here the house drew $13,500, so you see this country is going some. There were around 12,000 persons present and a fine crowd to box in front of. About 8,000 or 9,000 saw me defeat Lang ten days later.

I see Nelson beat Gans again, so one was more pleased over Nelson's victory than I was and now it is up to me to lure this Johnson the same way. As I already said, I am to get $6,000, or $30,000, for my end. Johnson is getting £1,000 and £100 for his end of the pictures. That is, win or lose, he will get $5,500—and that is more than he ever got before. The same applies to me, of course, as I never get $30,000 in one hunch before.

Interested in Ketchel.

I have been watching Ketchel and am waiting to see him look up with some heavyweight, as they say he is getting big. I would like to hear of him matching with Kordrion of San Langford. I want to get a line on him, not only for the sake of information, as, win or lose, I expect to retire after my fight with Johnson.

I have enough to keep me for the rest of my life. I have a home in contemplating at the game. A fellow can't be a champion always, and I may as well stop before I am beaten.

Longboat is said to be eager to break distance race of history will be decided in away from the amateur ranks. The Canadian resident is ostracized by the A. A. U. and the Amateur Federation of Canada, which is now much stronger than the Canadian A. A. U. Shrubb is eager for the engagement. For the past two years the Englishman has tried every available means to induce Longboat to meet him. There is bad blood between the pair.

Shrubb has always made light of Longboat's ability. He has ridiculed him severely, both in Canada and in England, and has taken every opportunity to knock his amateur standing beside. Dorando, like Hayes, has turned professional. A victory for him would make another interior engagements, both in America and Europe.

It is going to be a big race and there is every reason to believe it will be. It will be put on at the Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving night, or as near that date as possible. The full Marathon distance will be run—26 miles and 385 yards.

Should Hayes refuse to compete, every effort will be made to have a three-cornered competition between Dorando, Shrubb and Longboat. This should furnish one of the greatest competitions of history.

LIGHT CAR RACE WILL CREATE MUCH INTEREST

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The light car race which precedes the Grand Prix at Savannah next month promises to be only an interesting affair as was the great big event. There are now no less than twenty-one cars entered for the lightweight class, five having been added to the list since Monday, these including three Oldsmobiles and two Bucks. The three Oldsmobiles are the new model which are to be placed on the market at $1,250, rated at twenty-four-horsepower. These little cars are expected to make a reputation for themselves, as have all previous Oldsmobiles.

The Grand Prix race has likewise received two additional entries, one being a third Buick and the other a Chadwick that will be the only car to appear in the list for retirement from that event the Chadwick five-cylinder, especially built for it by Joseph Jeffrey, Jr. Should the Chadwick be the game it is the Buick and it looks good and strong. Houpt will drive the car, and will see to it that the Buick is made complete to raise trouble with him at the most inopportune moment.

* * *

It is interesting to note that F. B. Hower, the chairman of the contest committee, is busy arranging the details of the race although it will not be if he intended to handle it. This is all very fine, but Hower is a driver of a Buick himself, and how does he know that the new presidential boom will not appeal to him and will not appoint someone else?

Then there is the matter of the reappointed, and if he is motorists are wondering just how many of the committee who took part last year will enter in this year's contest.

There is a lot of talk about improving the rules for the coming year, but until they are enforced on all alike there is little to be gained. Whether or not Hower's three months' time taking part in the contest will interfere with Mr. Hower's management or any one else's.

KID HERBERT AFTER MATCHES

Kid Herbert of Kentucky writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN wanting a bout with Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Marvin Hart, Bill Pepke, Joe Thomas or Stanley Ketchel. He fought a twelve-round draw with Marvin Hart on October 9 at Louisville and would like to get him again. Herbert has fought Jim Barry, Jim Flynn, Hart twice and other light heavyweights.

GOOD BOUTS AT CAPE ANN A. C.

Albert Delmont, matchmaker for the Cape Ann A. C. of Gloucester, has arranged a good card Wednesday, November 4, with Tommy Riley, the clever New York featherweight, matched with Johnny Hanlon or Eddie Carr in the main event of twelve rounds. The semi-final will be between Johnny Carey and Johnny Cavill, eight rounds, and gosling and Sharkey or Beadreau, six rounds; Young Alberts vs. Young Burke, six rounds. Referees from Boston will be run and Martin Clougherty will referee.

Sporting News Briefly Told

PRACTICE IN STADIUM.

Harvard's football practice yesterday afternoon was somewhat shorter and less strenuous than on Wednesday. It consisted of a scrimmage against the second, followed by a long drill at punt catching for the backs and running down under the punts for the rest of the players. All the regular coaches were on hand, as was Lieutenant Graves.

BROWN UP AGAINST IT.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 30.—Altogether the prospects are not over bright for a victory over Harvard, and the Brown students do not feel very confident. The critical point is the weakness in the line, although it has shifted a few times of late. Dennie, it is practically certain, will not be able to go through the game on account of his injury, and Regnier and Hill will be used at the ends. This means a great deal, for neither of the men are by any means fast enough.

HINKEY DRIVES YALE.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 30.—Under adverse weather conditions for the third time this week the Yale squad had a long, hard practice under the coaching of Tom Hinkey. Inspired by his rather dery words, the varsity repulsed the scrub time and time again in its attempts, and finally the second team backs were unable to make the slightest headway against the varsity.

HARVARD CHANGES PLANS.

Manager Eggleston of that Harvard football team stated that the report that the team would spend the night before the Yale game at Morris Cove was incorrect. Harvard has gone there in the past, but this year the players will go to Farmington, where it will stop at the Elm Tree Inn.

TIME OF RUN CHANGED.

The time of the Tufts-Bowdoin cross-country run to-morrow has been changed from 10:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. The start will be made at the Tufts College post-office and the finish at the corner of Professors' row and Packard avenue.

BANNER TROTTING YEAR.

There never has been a time since trotting began when there were as many races with large purses, such big fields of horses entered and started, or such crowds of spectators, as have been seen at the various fairs and race courses this season.

BRIGHTON HIGH DISBANDS.

Because eight of its regular team have been disqualified on account of the three months' rule, the Brighton High School football team disbanded at a meeting of the school gymnasium yesterday after noon.

ONE GEERS GAVE UP.

Poison, the Egotist stallion Geers spent considerable time and money on, has at last trotted into the 2:10 list, with a winning race record of 2:09¾.

GOT RECORD FOR AGE.

Elbur Smith, 3, 2:11¾, was one of the fastest of his age, sex and gait raced in the Middle West this season, and his mile in 2:12¾ over the Charleston, Ill., half-mile track is the season's best record for three-year-old colts on the two-lap rings.

CORNELL TO RACE YALE.

The cross-country race protected for the Cornell team with some other college turns out to be with Yale in New Haven on November 4. Not only will the Yale cross-country team meet that of Yale, but a freshman squad also will be sent along to meet Yale, 1912.

RACE PROSPECT FOR 1909.

Astara, the Canadian stallion who was second in the 2:18 pace, is a handsome horse and ought to win plenty of coin next other season, for he is better than a 2:10 pacer and goes and acts like a high-class one.

BARNEY TO INVADE NORTH.

Down in South Carolina the old guard have christened him "Colonel" Barney Demarest. The veteran has joined his company for old New York and will appear before the racing footlights in Montreal and Ottawa, where the bell tinkles for the ice races.

ALL KINDS OF SPEED.

The Rex America three-year-old Royal Lancer, 2:18¼, looks like he had the making. He worked a mile in 2:14¾, half in 1:02¾ and a mile in 2:10¾.

PACKY READY FOR DANE AT 25 ROUNDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Packy McFarland is ready to fight Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship of the world, but the little Chicago boxer is not willing to sign up for a forty-five-round bout on the Coast.

When seen to-day regarding Willis Britt's statement that Nelson and McFarland would meet at Coffroth's place at Colma on January 1, Harry Gilmore, manager for McFarland, said that he had had a talk with Britt about a month ago on that date, but that they had not agreed on terms, weight or the distance of the battle. That there would be no trouble over weight was certain, but Gilmore has no intention of letting the Dane take all the money in sight, and he positively will refuse to sign up for a longer route than twenty-five rounds. Said Gilmore:

"Packy is not going to enter into a forty-five-round battle just yet. When he gets a little older and stronger I will let him fight that distance, but now a hard forty-five-round battle might do him harm. He would never recover from. Twenty-five rounds is long enough for any two men to settle the matter of supremacy, and if the Dane wants to go that distance he is not trying to log all the fighters' end of the spoils he can have a match."

ERNE WON ON POINTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Billy Glover of Boston and Young Erne of this city were the principals in the windup at the Penn A. C. here to-night. While Erne won on points, Glover put up a hard fight all the way and in the fourth round had a clash of speed that electrified the Quaker lad.

Erne had no stopping Erne, and he turned the tide again in the fifth and final round. He had all the best of the first Glover came in for his share in the second, but was not to be found in the third.

SIR TODD TROTS FAST MILE FOR THE 1909 STAKE RACES

By ED COGSWELL.

Visitors to the Readville race track this Fall might be led to believe the trainers were preparing for a coming season's racing in place of the fact that the professional turf sport for 1908 is a matter of the past. This idea is due to the boning the trotters and pacers are getting in the way of education for next year, the elegant weather prevailing till so late having been kind to the trainers' liking.

Probably the best performance at the track was the mile of Sir Todd (2:04½) in 2:12, the final quarter in 32½, a 2:00 gait. This mile was in a fast record and in the stable of Jimmy O'Donnell. He was laid over this season with the idea of giving him an extended campaign in his five-year-old form, O'Donnell seems he can drive Sir Todd a mile in 2:06, and the colt seems giving him a free rein and clothes for what he has accomplished with the stallion. Whether he does or does not remains to be seen that fast.

Lord Arleigh Trots Fast Half.

Jimmy Carpenter, too, has not been idle, for one other morning he worked the stallion Lord Arleigh in 2:16¾, the last half in 1:05¼, and quarter in 32½ seconds. He is the property of H. Dale Presque Isle, Me., and will go to the races in 1909.

Bob Proctor is busy arranging his stalls for the winter months, and has already hired by Bingen (2:06¾) which took owners have promised him. However, one of the stalls will be occupied by another than J. Bingen, as Bobby Dope is said to be to him the two-year-old Billy Be Undecidedly, a brother to Miss Pert (2:07¼), a candidate for next year's futurity rolls.

Naturally Bob keeps a close eye on the stall used by Dale, 2:07¾. In spoiling that great four-year-old he declares that he had no intention of being a "dummy" in the club's affairs, but would be a "Johnny on the spot" at all times.

C. C. Mayberry, one of the leading members of the Metropolitan Driving Club and owner of a big stock farm in Casco, Me., has signed to handle his string of trotters and pacers and race a stable next year the well known trainer and driver Ed. Fahey, who has brought out the noted trotting mare Martha Wilkes, 2:08.

MARATHON WINNERS TO MEET IN BIG RACE

In all probability the greatest indoor distance race of history will be decided in New York some time about Thanksgiving. A plan is on foot to bring into competition the four greatest distance runners of the age—John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon at the recent Olympic competition in London; Dorando, the Italian who was disqualified for being assisted at the finish in the same race after finishing first; Tom Longboat, the great Indian from Canada, who split in the eighteenth mile of the triumph, and Alfred Shrubb, the famous English professional.

It is now all up to Hayes. The crack American has done his great marathon triumph in England turned professional, seems loath to uphold the professional cause by actual athletic competition.

Dorando has a well known reputation of cycling and other professional sports, is sure that Hayes will eventually come to uphold America in the big international game. Dorando has been reported as disabled Mr. Powers that he would be glad to come over for another race at Hayes, and Longboat. Talk should furnish one of make the trip for any one else. the greatest competitions of history.

How to Vote for Direct Legislation

And the ONLY Way to Vote for It in Massachusetts

If the people have a chance to vote on their own laws there will be no more corruption in the Legislatures. There will be no more use for lobbyists. The scenes on Beacon Hill that disgrace Massachusetts every year will be ended.

A trust or a railroad may buy a Legislature, but IT CANNOT BUY THE WHOLE PEOPLE.

Direct legislation in the form of the initiative and the referendum was adopted by the State of Maine at its last election. It has been tried in Oregon, in Switzerland and in New Zealand.

Direct legislation is the foundation of all real GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE. When the people have a chance to initiate their own laws and to pass on them they can get whatever they want, regardless of trusts, lobbyists, boodlers or political machines. Not until we get direct legislation will we have government really "of the people, by the people, for the people."

The Independence party is the only one of the three great parties that is committed to direct legislation. A plank favoring the initiative and referendum was introduced at the Democratic National Convention, but was cast out.

The Republican party, like the Democratic party, is opposed to it. A few Republicans like Mr. Luce of Massachusetts and Mr. LaFollette of Wisconsin believe in direct legislation, but the party machine managers have always succeeded in suppressing reference to it in all national platforms.

William N. Osgood, the candidate of the Independence party in Massachusetts for Governor, wrote a pamphlet as long ago as 1893 entitled "Law by the People, or Direct Legislation." This pamphlet was published by the Massachusetts Direct Legislation League.

In this pamphlet Mr. Osgood called attention to the old New England town meeting as a familiar example of direct legislation in America.

Mr. Osgood is an able and sincere advocate of the initiative and the referendum. He is the only candidate for Governor who stands on a platform committed to this great American idea of government by the people as it was first exemplified in the New England town meeting of our fathers.

The only way to vote in the coming State election to permit the people to pass on their OWN LAWS is to vote for William N. Osgood.

Look at the Garrison Monument

It May Help You to Make Up Your Mind How to Vote

Any citizen who is dissatisfied with the Republican party or the Democratic party, but who continues to vote with either, although he realizes that both are so controlled by Big Grafters that it does not matter much which are in office, ought to walk down Commonwealth avenue and look at the monument there to William Lloyd Garrison.

That monument is an answer to the appeal, "Don't throw your vote away," so often made to voters who lack the courage of conviction. They are told that the Democratic or the Republican candidate cannot be beaten, so that if they are not voted for it will not make any difference as to the result. But that is not so.

The life story of Garrison proves the falsity of the plea that the minority cannot win. It always will win when it is RIGHT.

Garrison was once mobbed in Boston by a lot of lawless gentlemen, who were so wealthy and respectable they were called the "Broadcloth Mob." They said what Garrison wrote and published in behalf of the negro slave was hurting Boston's trade with the South.

The same element still exists in Massachusetts, and still wears broadcloth. It is just as intolerant of anything said about the industrial slavery now "a peculiar institution" in New England mill towns. It is just as willing to destroy manhood to obtain financial profit as were any Southern planters in the past.

Garrison had a hard time. He suffered all the trials which are put upon any man who tries to pry Special Privileges out of place. He was detested and he was reviled. He had a small newspaper, and it was very "YELLOW." He could not get profitable advertising and he had no capital. He found it hard to make a living.

But he was not thinking so much about making a living as about the good he could do for the oppressed and the helpless by what he wrote and printed.

He spoke for a small party. It was such a minority party that it seemed in his day beyond comprehension that it should ever grow to be Abraham Lincoln's party.

But votes cast for what Garrison advocated were not being wasted even when he was being mobbed by the "best citizens" and his printing plant was being destroyed. Many short-sighted people thought they were, but some of the men who wanted to lynch him right here in Boston lived long enough to see the man they called "Agitator," "Incendiary" and other unkind names given monumental honor on this city's finest residence street.

That monument is a great object lesson. Every workingman who is disheartened ought to go and look at it and read what is carved upon it. Then he should vote for Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for President, and for Osgood and McCartney, who head the State ticket. He should vote for all Independence party candidates. Their cause is much nearer a great triumph than was that of William Lloyd Garrison when he said:

"I am in earnest. I will not equivocate; I will not excuse; I will not retract a single inch; and I will be heard."

ONE THING AT A TIME

A STRONG NAVY

The people of Charlestown are especially interested in the question of building up the United States navy.

They have a navy yard there. That navy yard ought to be AT WORK, employing men and building ships for the protection of Boston and of the other cities along the coast.

The Independence party at its National Convention adopted this declaration:

> We believe that a small navy is poor economy, and that a strong navy is the best protection in time of war and the best preventive of war. We therefore favor the speedy building of a navy sufficiently strong to protect at the same time both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States.

The voters in the Ninth Congressional District, and especially in Charlestown, would like to vote for a man who believes in a BIG NAVY.

Mr. Keliher, the present Representative from that district, does not believe in a big navy. He has voted against it at every possible occasion in Washington. He MISREPRESENTS the Ninth District, just as he misrepresents Charlestown.

President of the Solar System

By C. B. Quincy

"BOOT carries Mars by $50,000!"

A terrific roar shook the Earth as the operator in the Sun flashed the bulletin against the sky. Everywhere in the world the people were out of doors, craning their necks backward to read the returns of the first Presidential election held throughout the solar system. One hundred and fifty years before one Rosefelt had become President of the Earth, in reward for exterminating all the wild beasts in Asia, Africa and America. His subsequent trip to Mars in the Write aeroplane opened the way for a confederation of the States of the universe, and the first election was now being held.

Toot of Mars was running on a local option platform. "Let the planets alone" being his motto, while Boot of the Earth was opposed to the betting which was done on the comets. It was frequently said that comet racing was carried on for the sport alone, and to improve the breed of comets, but without gambling the various race-orbits couldn't pay the expenses of maintenance.

Consequently, when Boot carried Mars there was terrific applause on the Earth, and predictions were freely made that Boot and Scoot would have a plurality of $79,879,999,000 in the universe.

Especially strong was the vote for Boot in Venus, where the suffragettes were in full control and got out a huge vote by having duchesses pour the tea at the polling stations.

Scoot added but little strength to the ticket, being, like the other Vice-Presidential nominee, only the favorite son of an obscure star.

Another bulletin was flashed from the Sun, and shooting stars were sent up from all the planets. Boot, as expected, had carried the solid Milky Way, which voted as a unit for butter-milk.

"It's a cinch for Boot," flashed the Sun operator, who was a Boot and Scoot sympathizer, "unless the Toot crowd ring in some fixed stars. They are reported to have thrown five billion dollars into the outlying stars, and they may have succeeded in fixing some of them."

But the returns that kept coming in showed that Boot was steadily gaining. He got the undivided vote of the Man in the Moon, swept Jupiter and almost aroused Saturn to enthusiasm. With the Pleiades' solid vote, and only a planet and a half to hear from, Boot was now more than nine billion ahead.

"Election assured," flashed from the Sun. "Good night."

And as the people of the universe went to bed, the stars in their courses sang: "Boot and Scoot—we've won, skyhoot."
